A FINAL PRACTICE IN DARK

MEMBERS of the Armed Forces carry a coffin for a dress rehearsal of the Queen's funeral in the early hours yesterday.

The rehearsal began in Wellington Barracks, central London, before moving past Big Ben in Westminster and proceeding along the planned route to Wellington Arch.

‘She had wonderful blue eyes’

THE Queen Consort has paid tribute to the late Queen, recalling her “wonderful blue eyes” and saying: “I will always remember her smile.”

Camilla, inset, in pre-recorded words, spoke of how Queen Elizabeth II carved out her own role for many years in the “difficult position” of being a “solitary woman” in a male-dominated world.

“I can’t remember anyone except the Queen being there,” the Queen Consort added, being among the majority of the nation for whom, until now, the Queen was the only British monarch they had ever known or could recall.

Camilla’s tribute to her mother-in-law aired shortly before the national minute’s silence at 8pm last night.

Camilla said: “She’s been part of our lives forever. I’m 75 now and I can’t remember anyone except the Queen being there.

Remembering the late monarch, she added: “She’s got those wonderful blue eyes, that when she smiles they light up her whole face.

“I will always remember her smile. That smile is unforgettable.”

SILENT AS WORLD VIPS GATHER for Queen..

LEADERS JOIN KING AT PALACE

by JERRY LAWTON

KING Charles played host to the world's most powerful leaders at Buckingham Palace last night – as the United Kingdom came together as one for his mum.

At 8pm silence descended across the nation as men, women and children paid tribute to their former Queen, Elizabeth II.

US President Joe Biden and First Lady Jill led a powerhouse of world leaders and more than 20 royal families descending on Britain to pay their respects.

Many last night attended what has been dubbed the "reception of the century".

The evening featured 1,000 VIPs including Mr Biden, New Zealand Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern and Japanese Emperor Naruhito.

Meanwhile, a funeral invitation to Saudi leader Mohammed Bin Salman sparked controversy.

And China is sending vice-president Wang Qishan but was barred from the lying-in-state.

Due to strained ties, the UK opted to invite ambassadors, not heads of state, from Iran, Nicaragua and North Korea.

Russia and Belarus are among a small group of nations excluded.

Tension in talks for PM

LIZ Truss is set for discussions with her Irish counterpart, Taoiseach Micheal Martin, against a backdrop of tensions over post-Brexit trading arrangements.

Britain is expected to push ahead with legislation to give ministers the power to scrap parts of the Northern Ireland Protocol.

The protocol was jointly agreed by the UK and EU to avoid a hard border on the island of Ireland.

Both the EU and Ireland claim Britain's move to unilaterally revise the post-Brexit treaty would breach international law.

The issue is set to ramp up ahead of a deadline at the end of October to form a new Northern Ireland Executive, which the DUP has so far blocked in protest over the protocol.

In addition to Mr Martin, Ms Truss will meet Joe Biden, Canadian PM Justin Trudeau and Polish President Andrzej Duda in Downing Street.

The talks are being portrayed as chats rather than formal sessions.

Suchet: Date was 'for real'

POIROT actor Sir David Suchet says he once thought a lunch invite with the Queen was a "hoax".

The actor, 76, was invited to the Palace in 1990.

He said: "My wife (actress Sheila Ferris) and I thought it was a hoax because the date was my birthday. Sheila went to the phone and rang up to expect a mate and the gentleman at the end said 'Buckingham Palace' and she slammed the phone down and said, 'It's real, this is real!'"

Sir David went along, describing the late monarch as "twinkly" and recalled how Duke of Edinburgh taught him how to peel and eat a mango.

Andy: 'A book closes'

ANDY Windsor has paid tribute to his mother, the Queen, saying: "Mummy, your love for a son, your compassion, your care, your confidence I will treasure forever."

He hailed the late monarch for her "knowledge and wisdom infinite, with no boundary or containment", adding: "I will miss your insights, advice and humour."

He went on: "Dear Mummy, Mother, Your Majesty, three in one."

"Your Majesty, it has been an honour and privilege to serve you."

He accompanied his words with a black and white photo taken by Cecil Beaton of his mother holding him as a newborn in March 1960.

Mr Windsor, who, in 2019, stepped down from public life over his friendship with paedophile Jeffrey Epstein, said: "As our book of experiences closes, another opens", adding that he would "tread gladly into the next with you as my guide."

'She was sharp till the end'

THE Queen was in "tremendous form" just a few days before she died, according to her trusted bloodstock and racing adviser.

John Warren features in one of the most repeated TV clips of the last week, when the Queen clapped her hands and beamed as her horse Estimate claimed victory in Royal Ascot's Gold Cup in 2013.

Mr Warren said he spent the weekend before the Queen died discussing her horses, as they had done so many times before.

He said: "She was in such a healthy state of mind and in tremendous form."

"She was absolutely, wonderfully switched on."

PRINCE Harry is said to be devastated about the Queen's "ER" initials being stripped from his military uniform.

The ex-squaddie's Army outfit was changed before he joined the vigil beside her coffin - even though his scandal-stricken uncle Andy Windsor's was not.

Harry, 38 is said to have considered wearing a morning suit instead to stand guard with Her Majesty's seven other grandchildren in Westminster Hall on Saturday.

The prince was allowed to wear the kit for the first time since the Queen died as a mark of respect, as he is no longer a working royal.

ER initials appear to be reserved only for working members of The Firm - which includes older brother William. A source said: "Harry is heartbroken. To remove his grandmother's initials feels very intentional."

Andy, 62 - now eighth in line to the throne - was stripped of his military patronages and use of the HRH title after he settled a lawsuit out of court with sex trafficking victim Virginia Giuffre.

PRINCE George and Princess Charlotte will attend the Queen's state funeral.

The nine-year-old future king and his sister, seven, will be in the 2,000 congregation in Westminster Abbey.

They will follow the coffin inside with the royal family but their brother Prince Louis, four, is likely to be considered too young to attend.

A record audience of 4.1 billion – over half the world's population – is expected to watch it on TV. Before the

A private committal service will take place later in St George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, when the Queen is laid to rest with Prince Philip.

Last night at 8pm people across the UK observed a minute's silence.

LAST GOODBYE: Prince George and Charlotte, centre, will be at funeral

Public grief of family

THE former Archbishop of York says he will be thinking of the Queen's family during her funeral.

Lord Sentamu told the BBC: "The Queen wrote me a most wonderful letter four weeks after the burial of Prince Philip, thanking me for the flowers, the prayers, and then ended by saying, 'When you are grieving someone you deeply love, it isn't easy when you have to do it in public.'"

"So my thoughts will be to the new King and the whole royal family, they are grieving publicly."

Sailors' pulling power

THE Queen's coffin will be carried on a 123-year-old gun carriage towed by 98 Royal Navy sailors, in a tradition dating back to the funeral of Queen Victoria.

On the day of Victoria's ceremony in 1901, the horses that were going to pull it panicked and reared.

Captain Prince Louis of Battenberg suggested to new king Edward VII that the Navy should step in.

Ropes were attached to the gun carriage, which weighing around three tonnes and a team of sailors was brought in.

It became a tradition that has been followed at all state funerals since.

7million to raise a glass

DRINKERS are expected to raise seven million glasses to Her Majesty today as pubs across Britain open for her funeral.

Brewery chiefs predict the whopping number of beers will be topped in toasts to "Her Majesty The Queen" at the unofficial nationwide wake.

Emma McClarkin, chief executive of the British Beer and Pub Association, said: "People have a desire to join together."

Howard Thomas, of the Spotted Cow in Holbrook, Derbys, said: "We're opening for the funeral and afterwards will be like a wake."

Hearing on hall charge

A MAN who was seized after approaching the Queen's coffin as it lay in state is due to appear in court today charged with a public order offence.

Muhammad Khan, 28, of Limehouse, east London, was arrested inside Westminster Hall on Friday.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said: "A man arrested in Westminster Hall on Friday has been charged."

"He will appear in custody at Westminster Magistrates' Court on Monday."

1million head to capital

TRANSPORT bosses are expecting a million people to descend on London for the Queen's funeral today.

Around 250 extra rail services will run, including some overnight trains, while National Highways suspended planned motorway closures.

There are fears the transport network will be overwhelmed this afternoon as people try to head home.

TfL boss Andy Byford said it was facing "one of the busiest days ever".

More than 100 Heathrow flights will be cancelled to prevent aircraft noise disturbing proceedings.

Charity can bag snacks

FOOD and drink confiscated from people waiting in the queue for the Queen's lying-in-state is being donated to charity.

People paying their respects have not been allowed to take food inside the Palace of Westminster.

Charity The Felix Project has received hundreds of kilos, mostly snacks such as crisps, chocolate and biscuits, and is also accepting unwanted blankets.

Its chief executive Charlotte Hill said: "We are honoured to be here to play a small part in this hugely poignant event and to know that an extra layer of good is being done here."

TV bosses deny Phil and Holly filed past coffin

■ by MEG JORSH

THIS Morning bosses have sparked fury by denying Phil and Holly jumped the queue to see the Queen lying in state.

Mourners insist Phillip Schofield, 60, and Holly Willoughby, 41, used their telly fame on Friday to avoid the 14-hour wait endured by members of the public.

Stars including David Beckham, 47, and Susanna Reid, 51, lined up patiently with everyone else before entering Westminster Hall.

Last night an ITV spokeswoman said: "This Morning had press accreditation and like other media, Phillip and Holly were escorted to work from the press gallery by Government staff."

"They did not file past the Queen's coffin. They were there alongside a host of other broadcasters and national press outlets for an item that will be broadcast on Tuesday's show. Any allegations of improper behaviour are categorically untrue."

In a statement posted on Saturday night, ITV said: "They did not jump the queue."

But one royal fan wrote on social media: "Rubbish. I watched them live file past. The world's media is outside. What were they doing inside?"

"They are not reporters, they present the show. They abused their position & queue jumped."

Jokers took the mickey out of Schofield and his "We Buy Any Car" ad, turning it into a "We jump Any Queue" meme online. A petition with more than 300 names is calling for the pair to be sacked.

A PAIR of mourners have sparked up a romance after meeting in the queue.

As crowds gathered in Windsor, above, and London, below, Jack Ciuro and Zoe, left, hit it off during their 13-hour wait.

Jack grinned as told Channel 4's Minnie Stephenson, how they kept each other company with "crisps and chat". He added: "We met at 10:30pm last night and we've been throughout the whole thing. We've actually got loads of things in common."

When asked if they'd keep in touch, Zoe said: "Yeah, 100%", adding that they now plan to watch the Queen's funeral together. Minnie later tweeted: "Call me Queue-pid."

Champ Tyson's tribute

TOUCHING footage has emerged of the moment Tyson Fury paid his respects to the Queen by laying flowers outside Buckingham Palace.

The videos - filmed by a passer-by - show the tribute from the two-time world heavyweight champion boxer and his wife, Paris.

Fury, 34, can be seen wearing a grey shirt and jeans, while Paris wore bright pink trousers, a blouse and heels.

The pair linked hands and posed for pictures before Tyson laid the bouquet on Thursday.

Sharing pictures of the tribute on social media, his hand-written message read: "To our Queen, Great may your bed be in Heaven. Love from Tyson and Paris xx Gypsy King x."

Closing time at stores

SUPERMARKETS, fashion stores and cinemas are among firms shutting their doors today.

Tesco, Sainsbury's, Morrisons, Lidl and Aldi were among those closing so staff can pay their respects to the late monarch.

Tesco's UK chief executive Jason Tarry said: "We want to express our gratitude to Her Majesty the Queen for her unwavering service."

Other high street retailers, including clothing stores Marks & Spencer and Primark, also said they will shut for the day.

Cinema chains such as Cineworld and Odeon have also announced plans to close.

In June she picked up £74,000 for speaking to Deutsche Bank at a London event.

Mrs May has banked more than £2.2million on the speaking circuit since leaving Downing Street three years ago.

One of her biggest pay packets came when she raked in £160,370 for four and-a-half hours' work with JP Morgan Chase at two events.

Interest

to soar

THE Bank of England is poised to make the biggest interest rates hike for over three decades when its decision-makers gather this week.

Economists expect the Bank's Monetary Policy Committee to raise rates by 0.75 percentage points to 2.5%.

It would be the highest interest rate that the UK has had since the 2008 financial crisis and the largest single rate rise since 1989.

The decision to hike interest rates is a bid to keep inflation under control. It is the best tool that the Bank of England has to steer inflation - currently at 9.9% - back to its 2% target.

The 57-year-old replaced Dame Cressida Dick following a series of outrages that left public confidence in the force at an all-time low.

They included the rape and murder of Sarah Everard by serving officer Wayne Couzens.

Trump explained: "I said, 'Why don't we have that?'"

White House insiders initially dismissed it as "Trump being Trump".

But he held discussions with the nation's Danish government in Copenhagen.

And when Denmark refused to sell Greenland, he offered Puerto Rico - the Caribbean territory Trump once branded "dirty and corrupt" - as part of the deal.

The claim is in the book The Divider: Trump In The White House 2017-2021.

Vine in blast at socials

JEREMY Vine has blasted social media firms after his stalking hell.

He hit out after ex-BBC DJ Alex Belfield, 42, was last week jailed for five-and-a-half years for relentlessly stalking four colleagues including Vine, 57, who branded him the "Jimmy Savile of trolling".

BBC Radio 2 host Vine said about YouTube and Twitter allowing his trolling to go on for nearly a decade: "We had to get lawyers to get his st taken down, and even then it's hard."

"The companies just say no. They don't have any moral values."

Vine had feared ex-BBC Leeds host turned YouTuber Belfield would incite one of his 360,000 followers to turn up at the Vine family home - possibly with a knife or acid.

Belfield had shared Vine's address with his army of trolls.

He added: "Belfield was never going to come to my house himself, but my fear was someone inspired by him would come and attack me or my children."

"My youngest daughter was 13 then and she burst into tears when I told her there may be somebody who wants to hurt her."

THE brother of Paul Pogba has been charged over an alleged £11million blackmail plot against the former Manchester United star.

Mathias denies the allegations. His lawyer Yassine Bouzrou said: "We are going to challenge this decision. My client has committed no criminal offence. We do not understand the decision to keep him in custody, especially as he has an alibi for the night of the alleged kidnap."

A global goodbye

MILLIONS of mourners will pause to pay tribute to the Queen as she's laid to rest today.

Emotions will be running high as the nation says a final goodbye to this remarkable woman.

Many of us will raise a glass as we toast the late monarch to thank her for her service.

World leaders have gathered in London to show their respect for the late monarch while billions tune in to watch the state funeral on TV.

It is set to be the most-watched telly event in history.

And it follows an extraordinary few days which have seen a huge outpouring of grief from the public.

The strength of feeling on display shows how much she meant to so many people.

It is all fitting for a woman who lived such an impeccable life.

She gave everything to her country. No-one else could have done the job anywhere near as well as she did.

Thank you, Ma'am.

Milking us yet again

THE cost-of-living crisis is having a massive impact on household budgets.

Surging food prices and energy costs are forcing many of us to tighten our belts.

Over the past few weeks everyday items have become increasingly unaffordable.

We've seen the bizarre spectacle of security tags being put on goods such as Lurpak butter.

It now looks like milk could be the next highly sought-after product.

This is because it could soon cost more to put it in your tea than petrol in your car.

Soaring milk prices mean that, in some areas, it's already now cheaper to buy fuel for your vehicle.

And that's bad news for all of us who love a cuppa!

15 FORTFUL FACTS ABOUT ROYAL CASTLE

AFTER the Queen's funeral at Westminster Abbey today, Her Majesty will be laid to rest in St George's Chapel at Windsor Castle – which is said to have been her favourite home.

The 900-year-old Royal residence in Berkshire is the oldest and largest inhabited castle in the world.

Now JAMES MOORE has put together 15 more fascinating facts about the landmark...

Windsor awe

1 Begun in the 11th century by William the Conqueror and originally a wooden fortress, the castle took 16 years to build and was designed to be a day's march from the Tower of London.

2 Home to 40 monarchs since Henry I moved in, it was rebuilt in stone by Henry II and besieged twice during the reign of King John.

3 Over the centuries the castle has been expanded by other monarchs including Edward III, who also established the Order of the Garter – its knights still proceed through the castle each year. George IV added romantic battlements and scaled up its famous Round Tower.

4 St George's Chapel, dating to 1475, is famous for its 76 heraldic statues of beasts such as lions and dragons. It's the last resting place of 10 monarchs including Henry VIII and Charles I, imprisoned there before his execution in 1649.

5 The Queen will be buried in George VI Memorial Chapel, a 1969 annex where King George VI and the Queen Mother are buried, and the ashes of Princess Margaret, the Queen's sister, are interred.

6 Prince Philip's funeral was at the chapel after he died at Windsor in 2021. His body will be moved from the Royal Vault to be with the Queen.

7 The venue also hosted a blessing for the marriage of

BLAZE: The fire in 1992. Above, George V & Queen Mary in the Garter Procession of 1913

Prince Charles and Camilla in 2005, and Prince Harry's wedding to Meghan Markle in 2018.

8 The castle was a favourite of Elizabeth I. Shakespeare's play The Merry Wives of Windsor is believed to have been performed for her there.

9 Queen Charlotte is thought to have decorated Britain's first Christmas tree at Windsor in 1800, a practice popularised by Queen Victoria and Prince Albert, who died there in 1861.

10 In World War One George V changed the Royal family's name to the House of Windsor. The Queen spent much of World War Two there. It's said Hitler hoped to make it his British HQ.

11 The castle was nearly demolished after the Civil War and nearly destroyed in a fire in 1992, a year the Queen called her "annus horribilis". The restoration cost £37million.

12 In 2003, "comic"

Aaron Barschak gate-crashed Prince William's 21st birthday at the castle wearing fancy dress.

13 Today the castle covers 13 acres, has 1,000 rooms, 450 clocks, the world's largest dollhouse and a 175ft-long table in St George's Hall. There's a kitchen with a 250-egg whisk and an 18,000-bottle wine cellar.

14 It is allegedly home to 25 ghosts including George III, seen in the window of the room where he was once confined during bouts of "madness".

Rob: My bookish heckler

COMEDIAN Rob Brydon has revealed his worst on-stage experience wasn't someone shouting abuse - but a woman who had her head stuck in a book throughout his show.

The woman clearly wasn't in the mood for a laugh as she was engrossed in a read called A History Of Genocide.

It happened when the former Gavin And Stacey actor was performing in Inverness.

Rob, 57, said when asked about his worst ever heckle: "It was a woman sitting on her own reading a book during my show."

ARLO Parks has pulled out of a string of US concerts, saying her mental health has "deteriorated".

The Mercury Prize and Brit Award winner said she was in a "very dark place, exhausted and dangerously low", and is flying home to the UK to recover.

She told fans on social media how she had been working herself "to the bone" for 18 months.

"It was exciting and I was eager to grind and show everyone what I was capable of, how grateful I was to be where I am today.

"The people around me started to get worried but I was anxious to deliver and afraid to disappoint my fans and myself.

"I pushed myself unhealthily, further and harder than I should've."

The singer added: "It's painful to admit that my mental health has deteriorated to a debilitating place, that I'm not OK, that I'm a human being with limits."

Announcing she was cancelling a clutch of upcoming shows, the 22-year-old said she will restart her tour in Portland, Oregon, on September 26.

Mars to put rock into 3D rockets!

DUST THE JOB: Space rock could make rocket parts

SPARE PARTS FIX FOR RED PLANET

ENGINEERS could 3D-print tools on Mars – made from the planet itself.

The breakthrough means crews on future missions will be able to build essentials such as parts to repair rockets.

It is a game-changer as space crafts cannot carry much due to capacity limits and the eye-watering cost of every extra bit of weight. It costs around £47,000, to carry just 1kg of material.

Boffins at Washington State University said small amounts of rock from the Red Planet – pictured right by the Hubble telescope – mixed with metal could create a material strong enough to make vital tools and rocket parts.

Prof Amit Bandyopadhyay said: "In space, 3D printing is something that has to happen if we want to think of a manned mission because we really cannot carry everything from here.

"And if we forgot something, we cannot come back to get it."

■ by POL ALLINGHAM

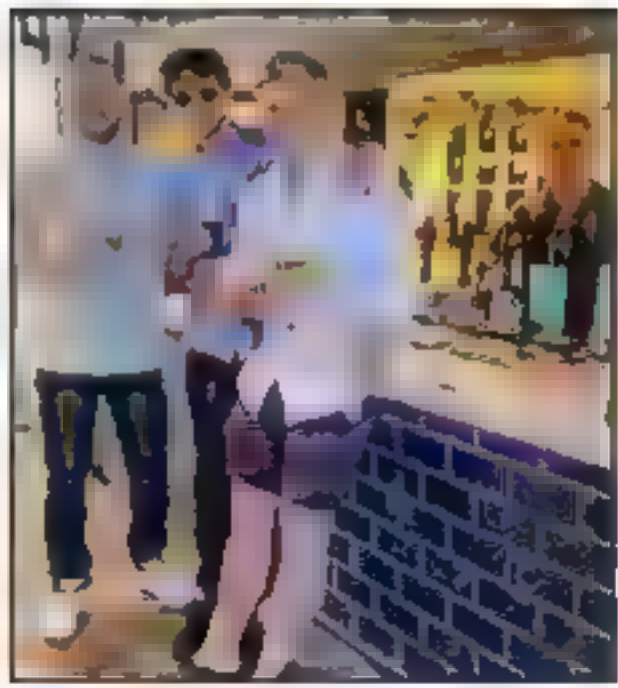

The team used a powder-based 3D printer to mix up regolith – a substance similar to Martian rock – with titanium alloy, a metal commonly used in space exploration because it is strong and heat-resistant.

A laser heated up the materials to 2,000C. The melted mixture then flowed into a moving platform where researchers could shape it into various objects.

Once it cooled, strength tests showed it was a winner. And the team reckon they can make even better composites using different metals and techniques.

Prof Bandyopadhyay added: "This establishes that it is possible, and maybe we should think in this direction because it's not just making plastic parts which are weak but metal-ceramic composite parts which are strong and can be used for any kind of structural parts."

67 pubs for love of dogs

A DOG lover is claiming a world record after visiting 67 boozers in 17 hours.

Recruitment manager Nathan Crimp, 22, trekked more than 18 miles on his epic pub crawl around Brighton on Saturday.

During the challenge, to raise money for the Dogs Trust, he downed lager, "baby Guinness" shots, tequila, rosé, prosecco, J2O, apple juice and water.

He finished at 4am yesterday, passing Gareth Murphy's world record of 56 pubs in 24 hours.

Accompanied by pals Ollie and Archie, he said: "It was easily the hardest thing I've ever done."

"The plan was to try and keep it sober for the first 25 pubs, but that went out the window 15 pubs in."

Nathan added: "Since Covid, dog shelters such as Dogs Trust have been overwhelmed with dogs now needing a home. This comes at a cost."

Firms' energy lifeline

FIRMS will be thrown a lifeline this week with an "effective" cap on their electricity and gas costs.

It is likely the Government will strike a deal with energy companies to limit the cost per unit of energy that businesses pay and make up the difference with a subsidy.

The move comes after a £2,500 a year price cap was announced for domestic users.

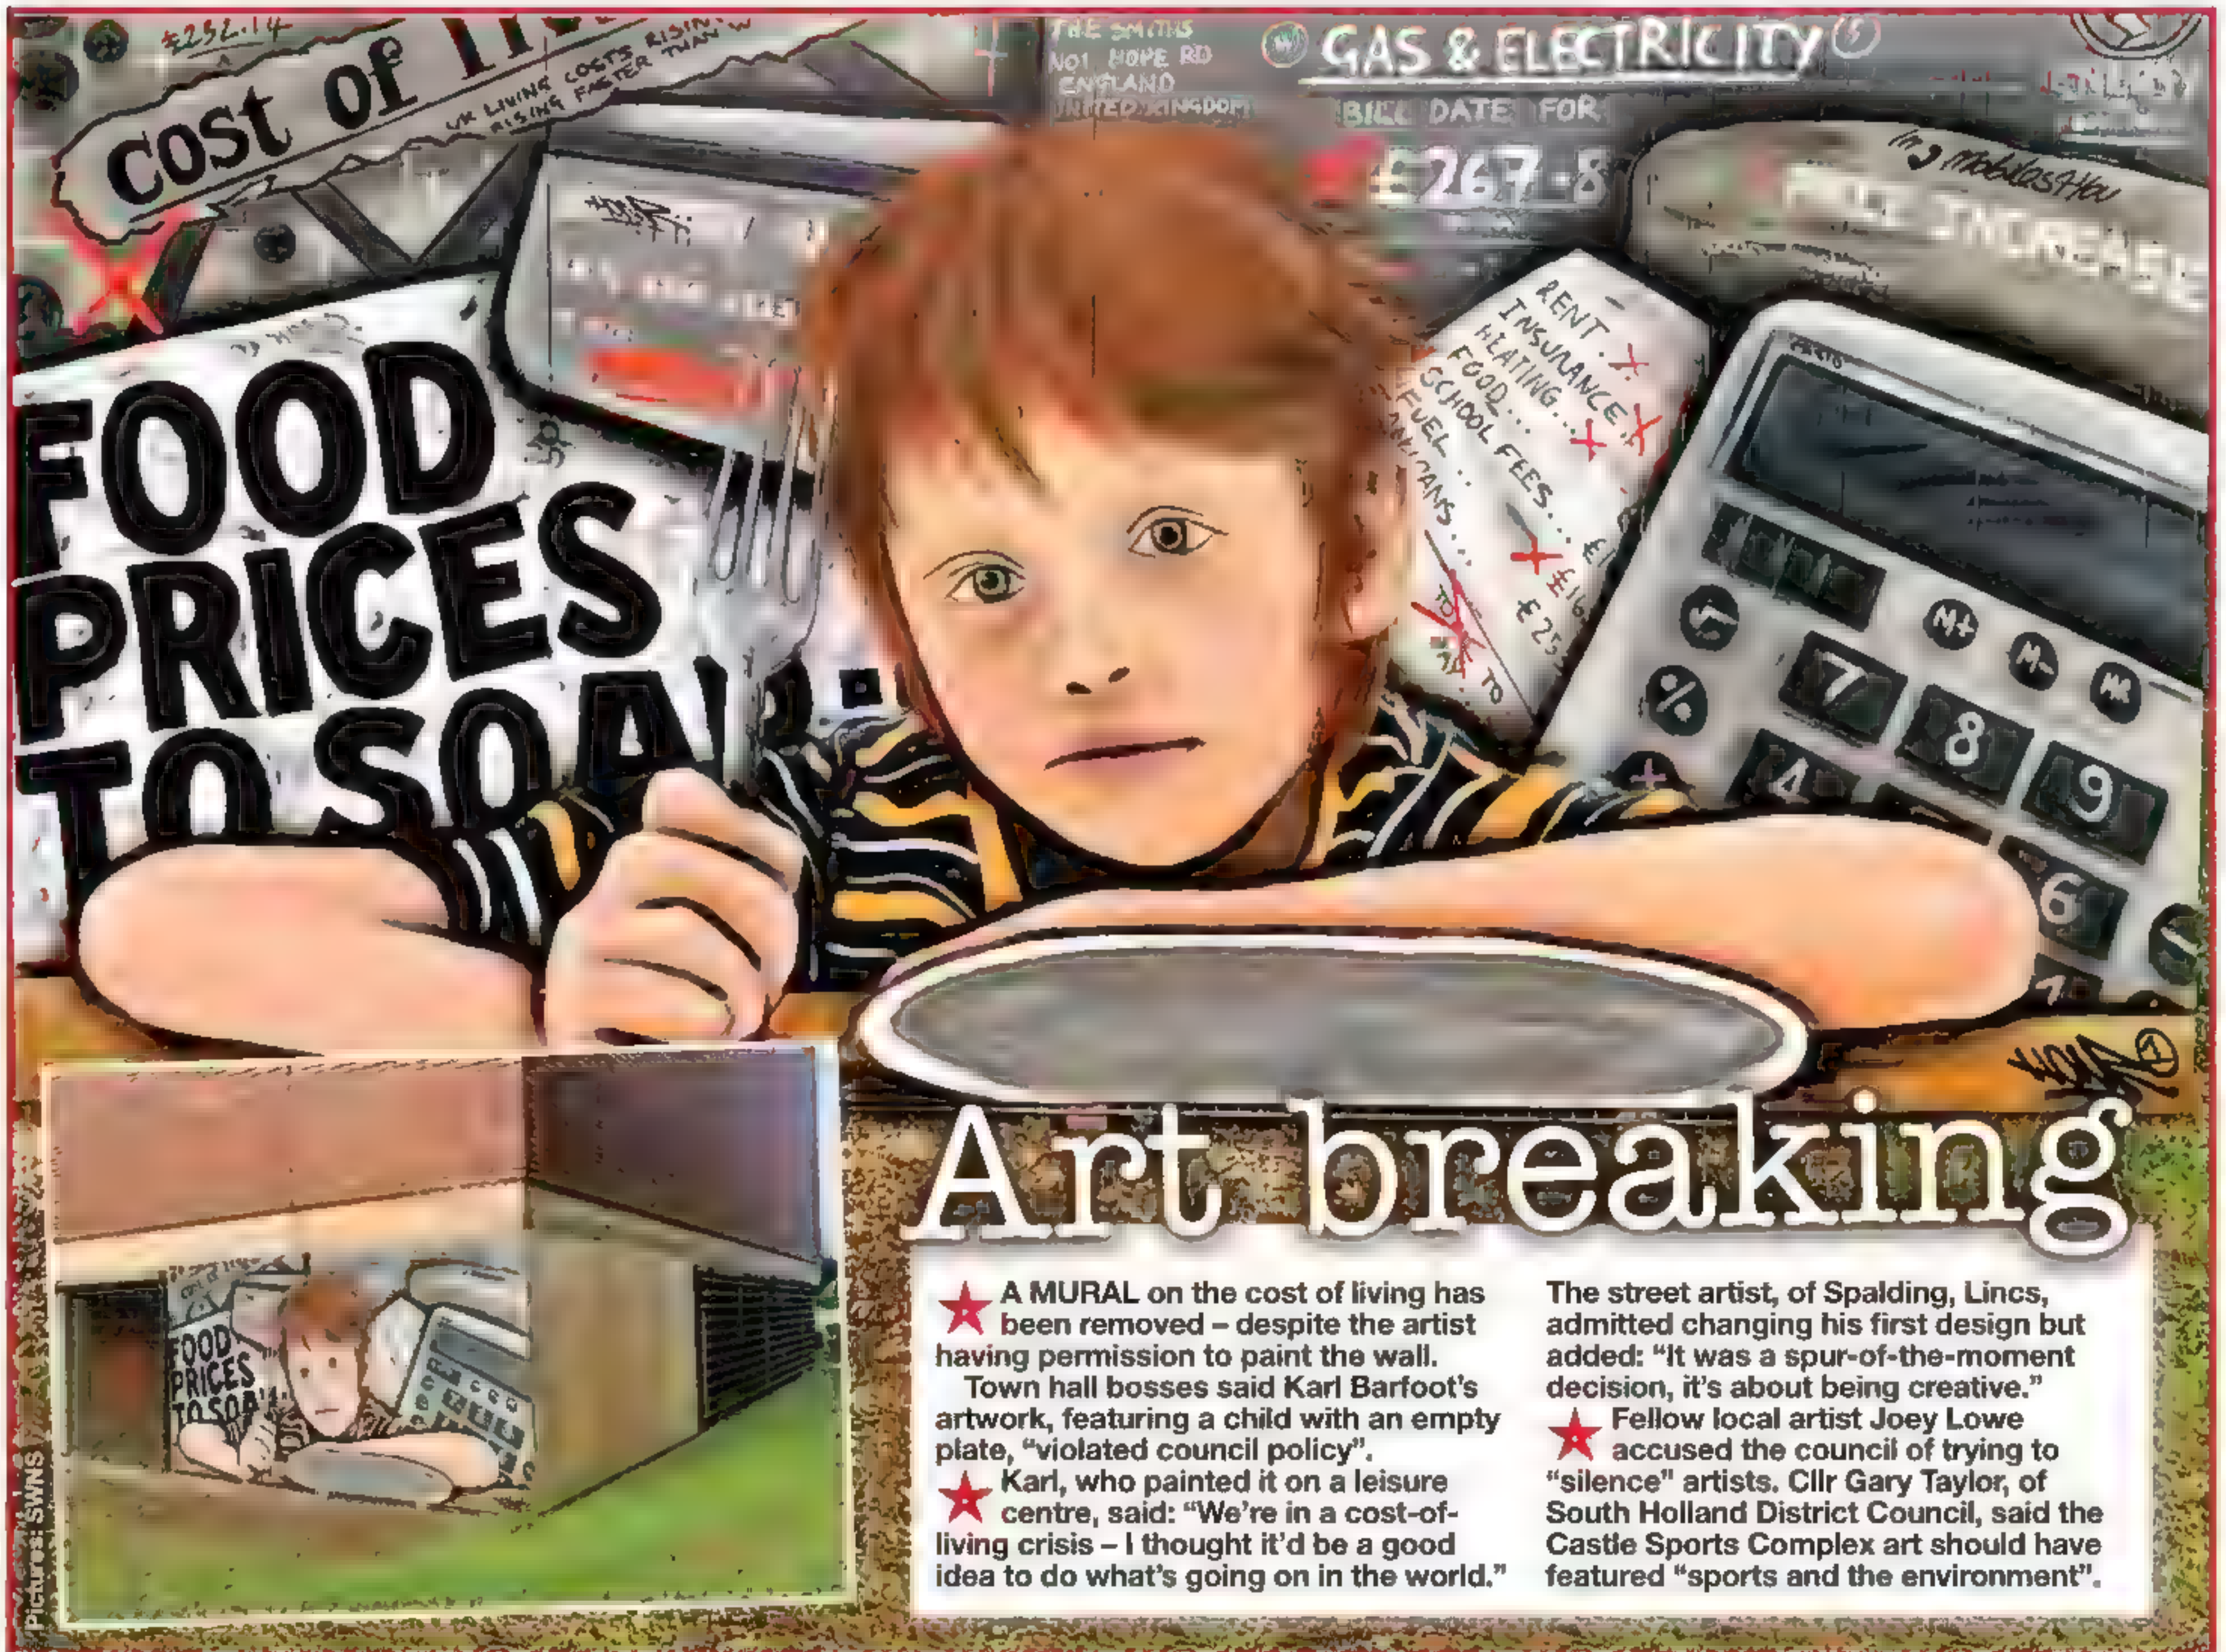

Companies have said that many will go to the wall without help.

They are facing a six-fold rise in the price they pay for gas and electricity.

Earlier this month, Prime Minister Liz Truss said firms would get "equivalent" support to home users.

It is expected the aid for businesses will be introduced next month when Parliament returns.

But bosses fear it may not actually come into effect before November, by which time many will have already had to sign new and expensive deals.

Art breaking

★ A MURAL on the cost of living has been removed – despite the artist having permission to paint the wall.

Town hall bosses said Karl Barfoot's artwork, featuring a child with an empty plate, "violated council policy".

★ Karl, who painted it on a leisure centre, said: "We're in a cost-of-living crisis – I thought it'd be a good idea to do what's going on in the world."

The street artist, of Spalding, Lincs, admitted changing his first design but added: "It was a spur-of-the-moment decision, it's about being creative."

★ Fellow local artist Joey Lowe accused the council of trying to "silence" artists. Cllr Gary Taylor, of South Holland District Council, said the Castle Sports Complex art should have featured "sports and the environment".

MILK SHAKER!

Pint will cost more than fuel

by PAUL DONNELLEY

BUYING milk could soon be more expensive than petrol as prices are turbo-charged.

The cost of milk has soared by two-thirds in the past year, reaching 86p a pint – the equivalent of £1.50 a litre.

Although petrol hit a record 191p a litre earlier this year, it has been falling steadily and in some places is already down to almost £1.50.

And it is predicted to drop further, meaning milk could be more expensive than the motoring fuel.

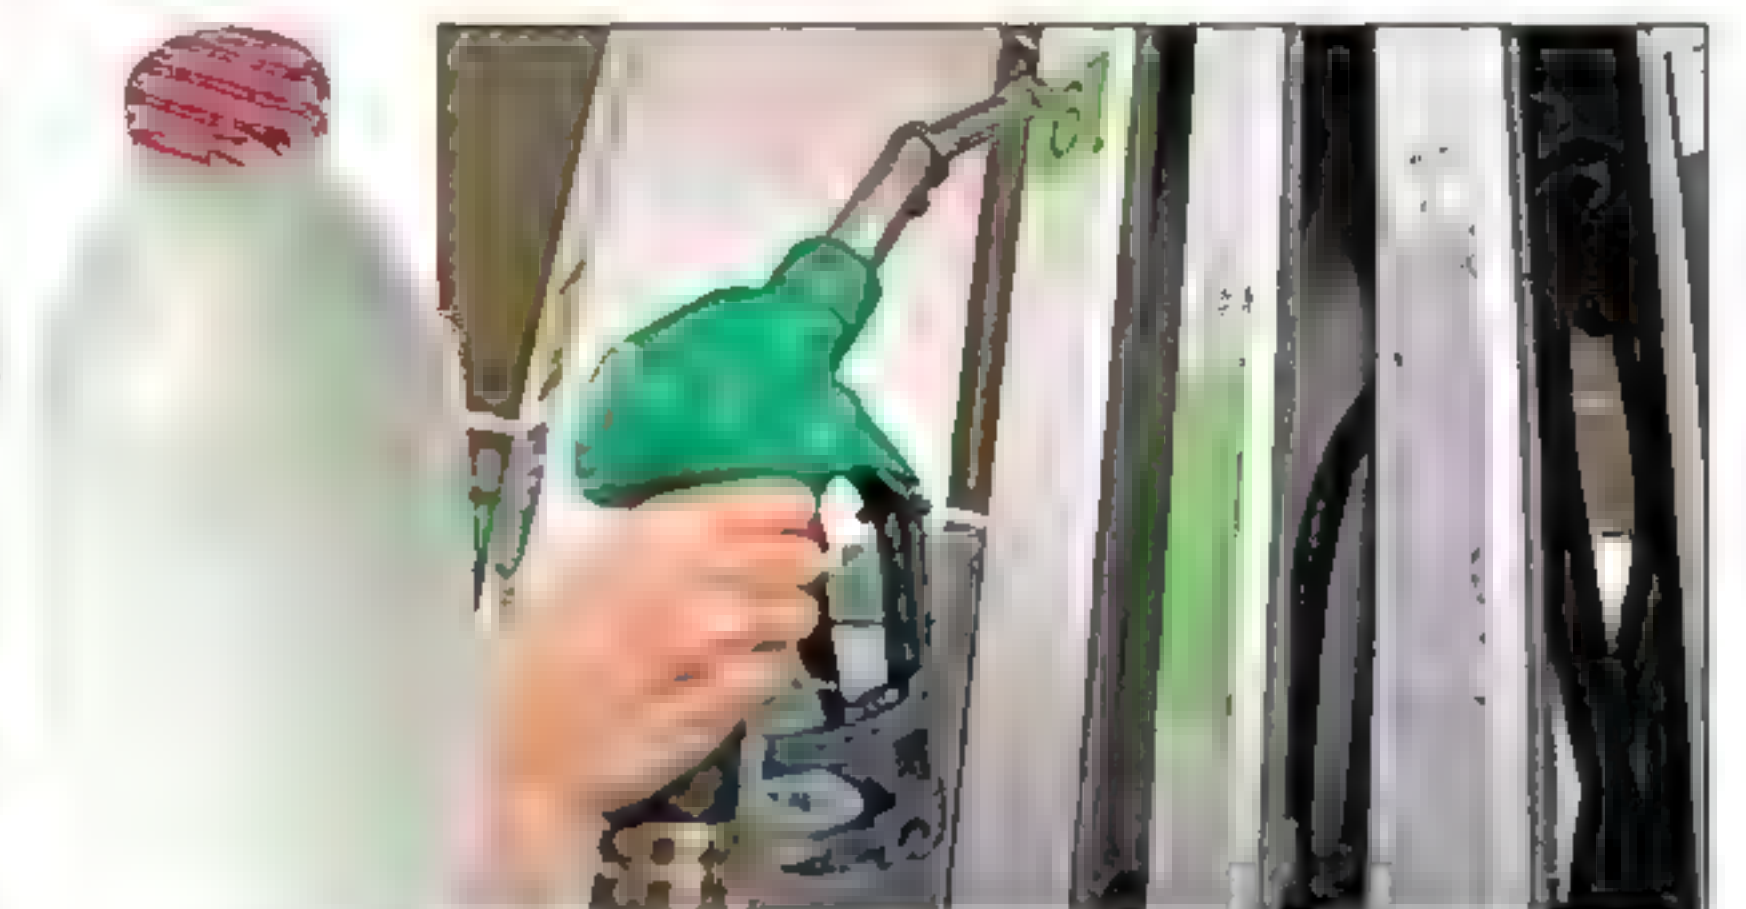

Trade magazine The Grocer reported: "Dairy is at the sharp end of food and drink price increases, with milk leading the charge."

"The average price of semi-skimmed milk has seen a market change since July and at an average 86p has increased 65% year on year."

Petrol prices could fall a further 15p, which would take the current average price of £1.66 right down to the current cost for a litre of milk.

The high cost of cow juice is partly due to other prices rising, including electricity and fuel for lorries.

Electricity is required for milking machines, processing and refrigeration, while the cost of milk churns has also risen. And diesel or petrol is needed for transportation.

PUMPED UP: Milk price could soar past petrol

It is cheaper to buy milk in bulk but this is not normally an option for older people on a budget or those living alone.

Semi-skimmed milk, however, can be stored in the freezer.

National Farmers' Union president Minette Batters said: "Costs are rising rapidly on farms across the country."

The cost of fuel is artificially high because of short supplies.

The AA said: "There is hope prices will continue to fall by as much as 15p as rising interest rates and the threat of global recession creates a decline in demand, which should enable the oil supply to stabilise."

Meanwhile, new chancellor Kwasi Kwarteng is preparing to hold a mini-budget on Friday as the country's financial woes deepen. He is expected to announce £30 billion of tax cuts in a bid to boost the economy as well as reversing April's national insurance rise.

GREY'S ANATOMY AND HEAD DOWN FOR GRENNAN...

FORGET showbiz parties – Tom Grennan would rather be curled up at home watching Grey's Anatomy.

Despite topping the charts with his second album, becoming an international jet-setter is off the cards for the homebody from Bedford.

Tom told me: "I don't go out. I love being at home. I hate being out, to be honest with you."

"I am in bed by 10, and I am watching Grey's Anatomy at the moment and it is actually sick."

"I said I would never watch it and then I got dragged into it by the missus, and I was like 'oh God' but love it."

"Now I am the one that's like, 'Do you wanna watch another one?'"

The 27-year-old insists he needs his beauty sleep too: "I have to get eight hours. It has to be eight hours. I really do feel it if I don't get at the very least six."

When he's not watching dramas, or sleeping, the singer is in the studio because he feels like he still has a lot to prove.

Tom admitted: "I have had moments in my career where I have been like, 'Look, two fingers up to you.'"

"I am really, really just trying to take over the world with my music."

His forthcoming third LP is almost ready and he teased: "It is all just fun, exciting and music that will get you moving."

"I feel in a place where I am just happy, but I know for a lot of people it is a struggle at the moment."

"The world we live in financially, politically – it is hard."

"So I want to make music that will help people escape."

"Let's put our hands up and have a dance!"

BOOK YOUR RETURN

EVERYONE knows you have to give your employer adequate notice – in writing – before taking time off work. But not everybody is aware you also have to give your employer notice when you are returning to work after an extended period of absence, for example maternity or paternity leave.

If someone has been hired on a temporary basis to cover your position, this ensures the company can give them adequate notice that their role will be coming to an end and to then prepare for your return. The notice period required is usually about two months (but always check your company's policy on this), and this should always be submitted in writing.

It comes after the Ukrainian military said Russia was struggling to find troops to replenish its depleted army.

A string of successful Ukrainian operations has sapped morale among Putin's troops, prompting desertions.

Moscow recently flew helicopters over Ukraine in a bid to round up fleeing soldiers.

VLADIMIR Putin's Ukraine invasion is failing, according to the head of Britain's armed forces.

The Russian president is coming up short "on all of his military strategic objectives", the Chief of the Defence Staff Admiral Sir Tony Radakin said.

He told the BBC's Sunday With Laura Kuenssberg show: "At the very outset we said that this was a strategic error by Putin and strategic errors lead to strategic consequences."

"And in this instance it's strategic failure. Putin is failing on all of his military strategic objectives. He wanted to subjugate Ukraine. That's not going to happen. He wanted to take control of the capital. We saw that that was defeated earlier on.

"He wanted to weaken Nato. Nato is now much stronger and we have Finland and Sweden joining. He wants to break the international resolve. Well that strengthened over this period and he's under pressure."

Sir Tony also said Putin's problems were mounting, with his troops being driven back by Ukrainian forces who have recaptured vast areas.

He said: "He's always had a problem in terms of crewing the

"We're also seeing a magnificent Ukrainian armed forces who have been courageous."

MINX (Paramount+) ★★★★★

AS magazine titles go, The Matriarchy Awakens isn't the snappiest.

But then the person behind this proposed new publication is a woman on a mission, fighting for sexual equality.

Paramount+'s new comedy set in early-70s Los Angeles stars Ophelia Lovibond as Joyce Prigger, a proud feminist but not the most commercially savvy businesswoman.

Approaching her with an alternative idea is Jake Johnson's character Doug Renetti, whose magazine company Bottom Dollar Publications takes a more down-to-earth approach.

The businessman suggests they join forces, but with a few tweaks to the format Joyce had in mind. Most significantly, for maximum reader appeal, he wants the mag - with Minx as its new title - to feature a fella with his kit off as a centrefold in every issue.

YEP, farmer Jeremy Clarkson and his chums Richard Hammond and James May are off on yet another of their frantic four-wheeled adventures, this time taking them to the Scandinavian Arctic Circle.

And why the hell would they want to go there, I hear you ask.

Beautiful as it may be, it's also kind of bleak and bone-chillingly cold.

Well, because it means they can undertake a unique challenge, set for them by Grand Tour producer Andy Wilman.

With each of the presenters at the wheel of his favourite rally car - and to determine which of those vehicles is best - they must drive across Norway, Sweden and Finland, without dropping below the Arctic Circle.

"And you must get to Ivalo Airport near the Russian border by 5pm on Saturday," Wilman's text adds, "because that's when your plane back to the UK leaves."

Jezza's first response, having figured this gives them six days to cover around 600 miles?

"It doesn't sound very tricky," he says.

But, as May in particular is about to discover, it's a route on which taking risks can have terrifying consequences.

OBESE women taking the combined pill are 24 times more likely to develop life-threatening blood clots, researchers found.

The combined pill contains a synthetic version of oestrogen - a hormone which can cause venous thromboembolism (VTE).

The condition reduces blood flow to organs - potentially triggering heart attacks or strokes.

Professor Giuseppe Rosano, of Italy's San Raffaele Pisana scientific institute in Rome, said: "Evidence indicates obesity and combined oral contraceptives affect VTE risk and this should be considered in prescribing decisions."

Coastal fortress is £55k

A COASTAL fort built to keep out Napoleon and set in 26 acres of countryside is for sale - for just £55,000.

There is just one catch as the plot in Dungeness, Kent, is a Site of Special Scientific Interest so can be enjoyed by its owner but not developed.

The fort is believed to have been built in 1798.

Kevin Gilbert, from Clive Emson Auctioneers, said: "The majority of it is SSSI so whatever people decide they think they could do with it they'll need to make their own investigations."

"It's just a lovely piece of land with a little bit of historic interest."

An SSSI is protected due to its precious wildlife, plantlife or geology.

PREGNANT Stacey Dooley admits she caused a stink while playing Prawn Cocktail in The Masked Dancer.

The TV investigative reporter, 35, had morning sickness when filming the ITV show.

Posting a photo on social media munching on a packet of prawn cocktail crisps, she said: "A dancing prego prawn."

"So sorry to my gorgeous runner I just know my dressing room stank of sickness."

Mum's DIY abortion bid over money woe

SUE Barker has revealed her mum almost terminated her pregnancy with a DIY abortion.

The former Wimbledon host and tennis ace, 66, was an unplanned third child.

And she said her mum Betty downed gin and "bounced down the stairs" in an attempt to terminate the pregnancy as she was terrified there was not enough cash to bring her up.

Sue said: "My dad worked really hard, but they had just budgeted for two kids and they didn't have a lot of money left over.

"Then, a few months after my brother was born, suddenly my mum Betty was pregnant again."

"She always said to me, 'I didn't want you. I feel so bad about it.'"

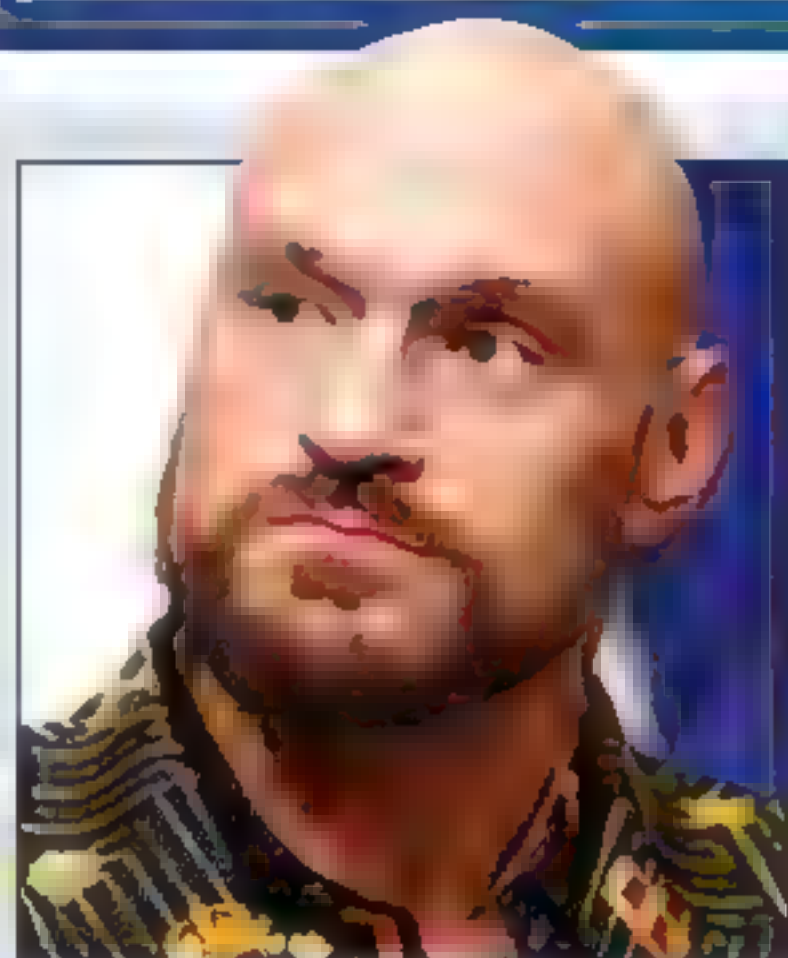

Sue said that despite her now-dead mum's admission about not wanting her she was extremely close to her parents, who supported her tennis career despite their financial woes.

HUNTER: Caveman

Caves had baa meals

CAVEMEN were eating lamb chops up to 2,000 years earlier than thought.

Archaeologists analysed 13,000-year-old sheep poo from a stone age camp in Abu Hureyra, Syria.

It showed the animals were farmed for food long before previous estimates.

Prof Alexia Smith, of the University of Connecticut, US, said: "Hunter-gatherers were bringing live animals to Abu Hureyra between 12,800 and 12,300 years ago and keeping them outside of their hut."

"This is almost 2,000 years earlier than what we have seen elsewhere."

THE GOLDEN YEAR

Can you guess the year from these five clues?

1. The first punk single - New Rose by The Damned - is released.
2. Liverpool win the UEFA Cup for the second time going 4-3 against Belgium's Club Brugge K.V.
3. Carry On legend Sid James dies live on stage at Sunderland's Empire Theatre.
4. At the Winter Olympics, John Curry becomes Britain's first gold medallist.
5. US police drama Starsky & Hutch starring David Soul and Paul Michael Glaser arrives on UK telly.

"Let's protect orangutans from extinction."

PICK A DOG TO MATCH YOUR HANDS

HOUND ADVICE: Lefty dogs like lefty owners

Bond better when on the same side

LEFT-handed people should have left-pawed dogs for a better relationship, say scientists.

Our canine chums can be right or left-pawed but change to follow their owner's lead.

Kimberley Charlton, of Lincoln University, said: "The characteristics that come with being left or right-handed/pawed may benefit dogs and their owners by functioning the same way."

"Dogs with left-handed owners were significantly more likely to have a left-paw bias. This was the same for right-handed owners."

Boffins tested 62 dogs by asking for a paw and seeing which was offered most.

They then put something out of reach and watched which paw was used to fetch it. They said: "Owner handedness should be considered when pairing dogs to owners, especially in assistance work."

The team also said that right-handed owners and dogs could perform better at agility tests.

Socials addicts

TEENAGERS from deprived backgrounds are more likely to get addicted to social media such as Facebook, Instagram and WhatsApp, a study claims.

The situation is even worse in schools where wealth and social differences exist between classmates.

Dr Michela Lenzi, of the University of Padua in Italy, said: "These findings indicate the potentially harmful influences of inequality at the individual level."

BLADE RUNNER IS MAKING A TV RETURN BUT WHAT

Blade Runner is getting a TV spin-off with the original film's director Ridley Scott set to produce the Amazon Prime series. Widely hailed as one of the best flicks of all time, the 80s classic set in 1919 with synthetic humans known as replicants will now be looking into a futuristic 2099. Here, KIM CARR looks at where the cast of the original movie are now...

SEAN YOUNG (Rachael)

SHE went on to star in sci-fi flick Dune, Wall Street and Ace Ventura: Pet Detective. But the star's career took a tumble after a horse-riding accident meant she had to pull out of playing Vicki Vale in Tim Burton's Batman.

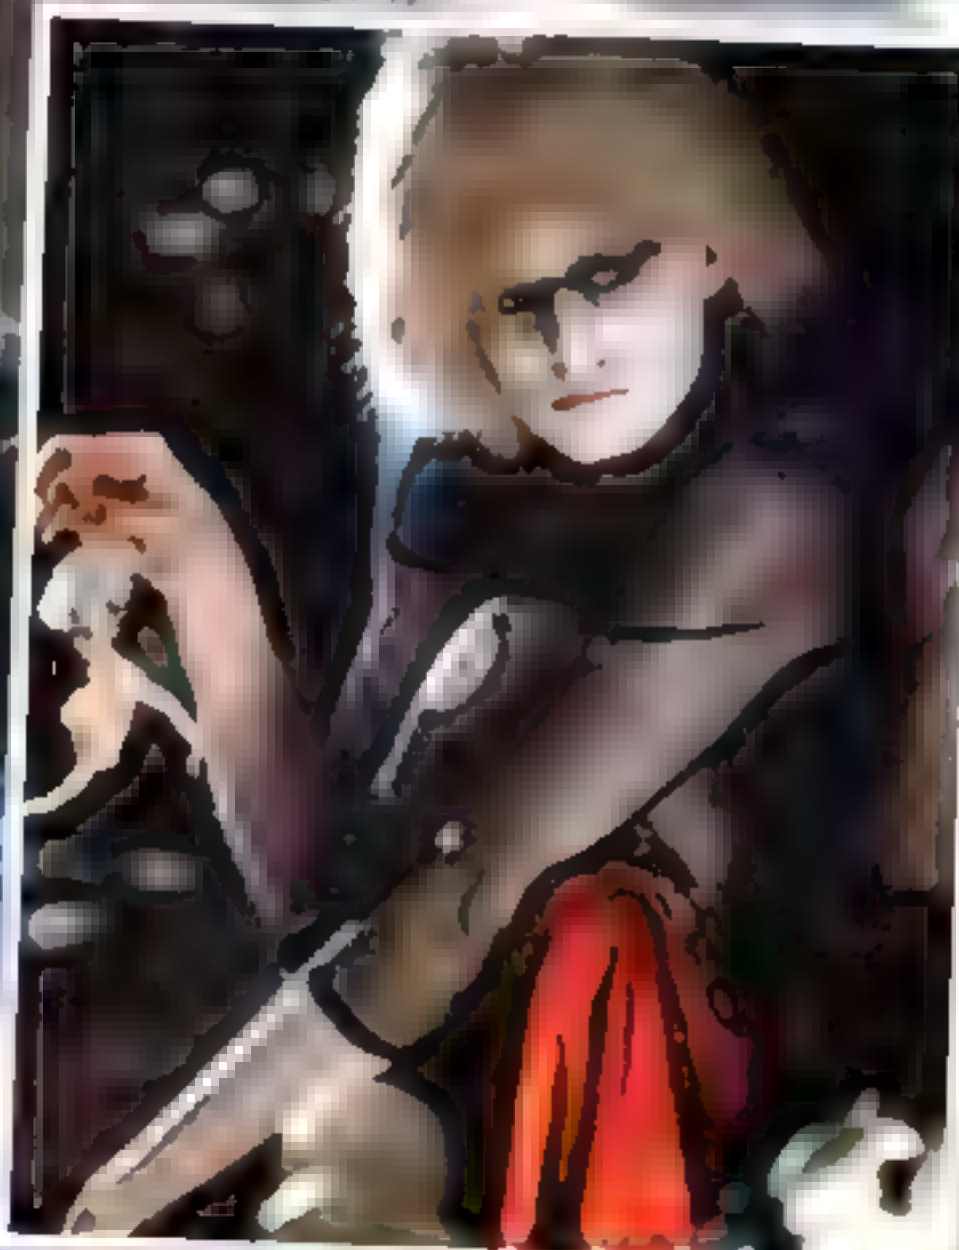

Young turned up at Catwoman auditions for Batman Returns in full costume and, after missing out to Michelle Pfeiffer, she hit out on US telly. The actress's appearance impacted her reputation but she returned in Blade Runner 2049 in CGI form.

The 62-year-old married, divorced then re-wed actor and composer Robert Lujan.

But she was placed under citizen's arrest at the 2012 Oscars after-show where she tried to get in without a ticket and slapped a security guard.

DARYL HANNAH (Pris)

SHE scooped the part over Debbie Harry from Blondie, who was Ridley's first pick, and scored huge hits next in Splash and Roxanne.

Hannah's love life has seen a relationship with John F Kennedy Jr and a marriage to Neil Young, while she spoke out about suffering sexual harassment from Harvey Weinstein, who she claimed stopped her finding work after she starred in Kill Bill.

In 2002 the now 61-year-old played Robbie Williams' love interest in his video for hit single Feel.

JAMES HONG (Hannibal Chew)

HIS hits also included Big Trouble In Little China, Wayne's World and voicing characters in animations Mulan and Jackie Chan Adventures.

In May this year, the 93-year-old received a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

Hong has been married twice, and now lives with second wife Susan Tong, mother of his daughter April.

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE CLASSIC 80S MOVIE CAST...

HERE'S WHO DIDN'T MAKE IT TO NEXT

RUTGER HAUER
(Roy Batty)

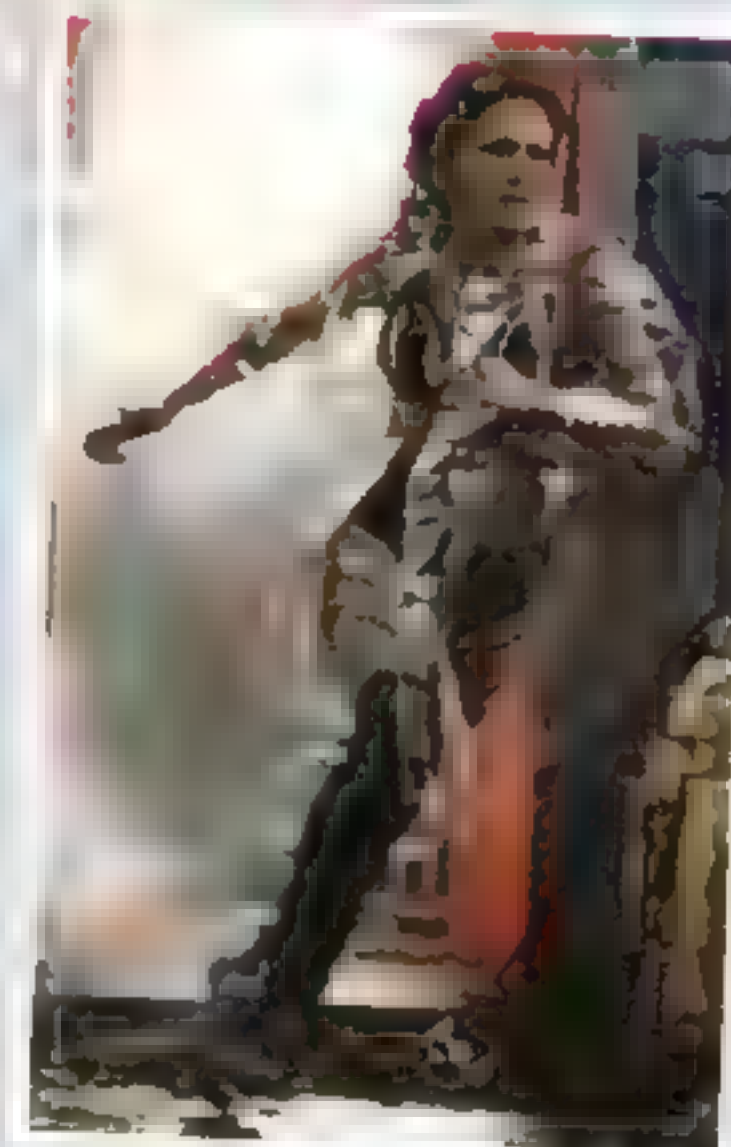

HE wore hot-pink satin trousers and huge green sunglasses for his Blade Runner audition and later branded it his favourite film he's starred in.

He then starred in Batman Begins, Sin City and Buffy The Vampire Slayer. Married twice, Hauer died in 2019 aged 75 from an undisclosed illness.

JOANMARIA CASSIDY (Zhora)

SHE played Dolores in Who Framed Roger Rabbit and enjoyed success in Don't Tell Mom The Babysitter's Dead before an award-winning turn in Six Feet Under as Margaret Chenoweth. She also appeared in Desperate Housewives and Law & Order: UK.

The 78-year-old has been married once, to Dr Kennard Kobrin.

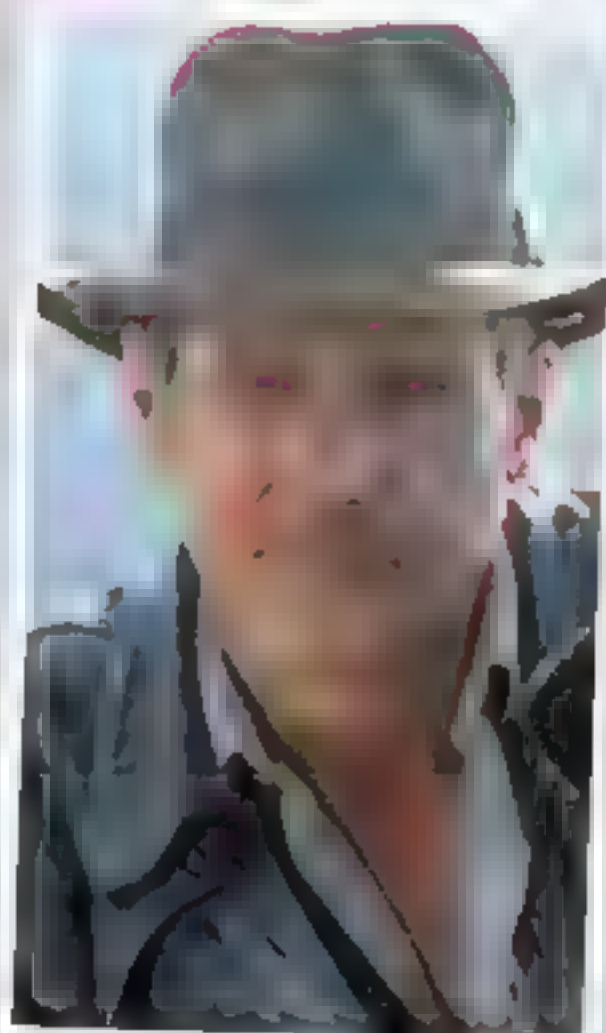

HARRISON FORD
(Rick Deckard)

HE took on the role first offered to Dustin Hoffman, who turned it down for being "too macho".

Ford called it his most difficult film experience but it boosted him to leading man status with Patriot Games, The Fugitive and Air Force One among his many follow-on blockbusters – as well as the Star Wars prequels and Indiana Jones sequels.

He has been in a number of aircraft accidents and near misses, and is married to Ally McBeal star Calista Flockhart.

Next year the 80-year-old pulls on a fedora again to reprise his role as Indiana Jones.

EDWARD JAMES OLMO
(Gaff)

THE actor moved on to acclaimed roles in Stand and Deliver, Selena, Battlestar Galactica and Dexter, plus returned for Blade Runner 2049. The star, 75, also scooped a Golden Globe and Emmy for Miami Vice.

EMMET WALSHE
(Dwyer)

HE found his next role in the Coen brothers' first film Blood Simple, joined Will Smith in Wild Wild West and starred in The Iron Giant. Guest turns in shows including Home Improvement took the actor, now 87, to the small screen.

Loved by robins and other small garden birds!

Dear all Garden Bird Lovers,

As Autumn sets in, it is ever more important to feed our garden birds the very best!

For birds that do migrate, they require lots of calories to fly the thousands of miles they cover. For birds that stay at home, they will need a steady source of food to keep them healthy.

Masterful costumes

DOCTOR Who star Sacha Dhawan raids the show's dressing-up box in the BBC centenary special next month - and dons some rather familiar outfits.

The actor, who plays the Master, is known for his disguises in his battles with the Time Lord.

And for all those Whovians who love a bit of cosplay, it seems we are going to be treated to him sporting some of the Doc's old wardrobe.

So look out for Tom Baker's famous long multi-coloured scarf, Peter Davison's cricket jumper, Jon Pertwee's velvet cape and even Matt Smith's fez.

Sacha said about his disguises: "I said, 'As long as there's some range in there,' and [show boss] Chris Chibnall has certainly delivered."

The special will see Jodie Whittaker bow out as the 13th Doctor.

Fans: Expect a new spectre on Ghosts!

OUR favourite TV Ghosts are getting a new spook to play with when they return this week.

Fans have been used to seeing the gang of nine spirits who have been stuck with each other in Button House for the past three series.

But in the fourth season starting on Friday night, a new mystery spectre will be arriving.

His appearance causes a rumpus among the group as they all fight to be his new best friend.

The jostling amuses their human pal Alison Cooper, played by Charlotte Ritchie. She said: "We meet a new ghost in a neighbouring field. The main ghosts hadn't noticed him before so they're jostling to speak with him after hundreds of years of living with the same people."

The sitcom has become a jewel in the BBC's crown and one of the keys to its success is that it is a good old-fashioned family show.

Laurence Rickard, who plays caveman Robin, said: "Over the years, comedy got a bit ghetto-ised."

"It was a thing for grown-ups and then there were kids' shows, and ne'er the twain shall meet.

"We were keen as possible to blur that line."

KEELEY Hawes thought she'd landed on another planet while filming BBC drama Crossfire.

There was a TV company from Germany shooting a series in the same location, but theirs was set on Mars. Keeley said: "There would be aliens walking the hotel while we were shooting."

WORLD WAR Z ★★★★★ (2013)

Film4, 9pm Brad Pitt's investigator heads off on a worldwide mission after a virus unleashes hordes of the undead. The plot is a bit ramshackle but the set-pieces are spectacular. We get zombies on a plane, a zombie siege in Jerusalem and zombies creeping around the corridors of a Cardiff laboratory. Mireille Enos also stars.

MAZE RUNNER: THE SCORCH TRIALS ★★★ (2015), Film4, 11.15pm

After escaping from the isolated community at the centre of a mysterious labyrinth the children find themselves in a desolate wasteland. Soon they set about seeking the truth about the organisation that imprisoned them. Dylan O'Brien and Kaya Scodelario star in Wes Ball's take on James Dashner's dystopian sci-fi novel.

HotTV CHOICE with Mike Ward

Obviously these have been tricky times for TV schedulers, having to decide which of their regular programmes it's OK to carry on with and which it would be more respectful to suspend for the time being. Especially on a day such as today.

But few viewers, I'm sure, are likely to take exception to the fact that traditional favourites such as MASTERMIND (7pm, BBC Two) and UNIVERSITY CHALLENGE (8pm, BBC Two) have stayed put. There's something reassuring and comforting about a quiz.

The Mastermind episode is actually the first in the new series, and the second with Clive Myrie asking the questions.

It also happens to be the show's 50th anniversary. Is there any series on British television, I wonder, that's undergone so few changes in the course of a half a century? A specialist round, then a general knowledge round — it's been that way since forever, hasn't it? The only difference being that the general knowledge questions these days tend to be along the lines of: "What is the capital of England?" or "Roughly how many members were there in the original line-up of the Fun Boy Three?"

The specialist subjects tonight are the geography of Francisco de Goya, the Philip Marlowe novels of Raymond Chandler, the BBC drama Peaky Blinders and Team GB at the 2020 Summer Olympics. Although a preview episode wasn't available for me to watch, I'm guessing Jessica Ennis-Hill will crop up as an answer at least once.

Yep, Jess was Peaky Blinders' absolute star, no question.

ANSWERS IN TOMORROW'S PAPER

JUST JANE

JANE O'GORMAN SOLVES YOUR PROBLEMS TODAY
... AND EVERY DAY

Hubby out for hours

MY husband has retired early. We've drastically downsized and he is happily spending our savings.

Each morning he goes to the gym – and doesn't come back for six hours. When I ask him where he's been he says: "Doing jobs" (i.e. going to the bank, seeing the dentist, etc).

He maintains he visits his mum, but I can't check because she has dementia and doesn't recognise me.

I suspect that what he's actually doing is sleeping with other women – again.

He's always been a rogue and we broke up briefly in 2012 when I discovered that he'd fathered a child with another woman.

I'm 43 and I've had enough of him treating me like a idiot.

JANE SAYS: Surely this is when you put your foot down, before your husband races through your savings and leaves your self-esteem in tatters?

You're still young. There is still time for you to follow your dreams and enjoy a better life.

Sadly, he hasn't proved himself worthy of you and is now being selfish.

Trust your instincts. If you suspect he's spending six hours a day in the arms of other women, you have to front him up.

His difficult ex has something on him

HE PAYS MONEY TO HER

THERE are three of us in our relationship: me, my partner and his tricky ex.

Despite being with me for over a year he's still giving her cash and propping her up. He's the first person she calls when she gets a bill or something needs fixing. He rushes round to soothe her like his backside is on fire.

I don't think they're still having sex – but I wouldn't be surprised if she's still demanding that too.

I need him to banish her from our lives and for us to be a couple, but he says it's complicated.

He says he can't simply walk because she's vindictive and unpredictable and has got too much on him.

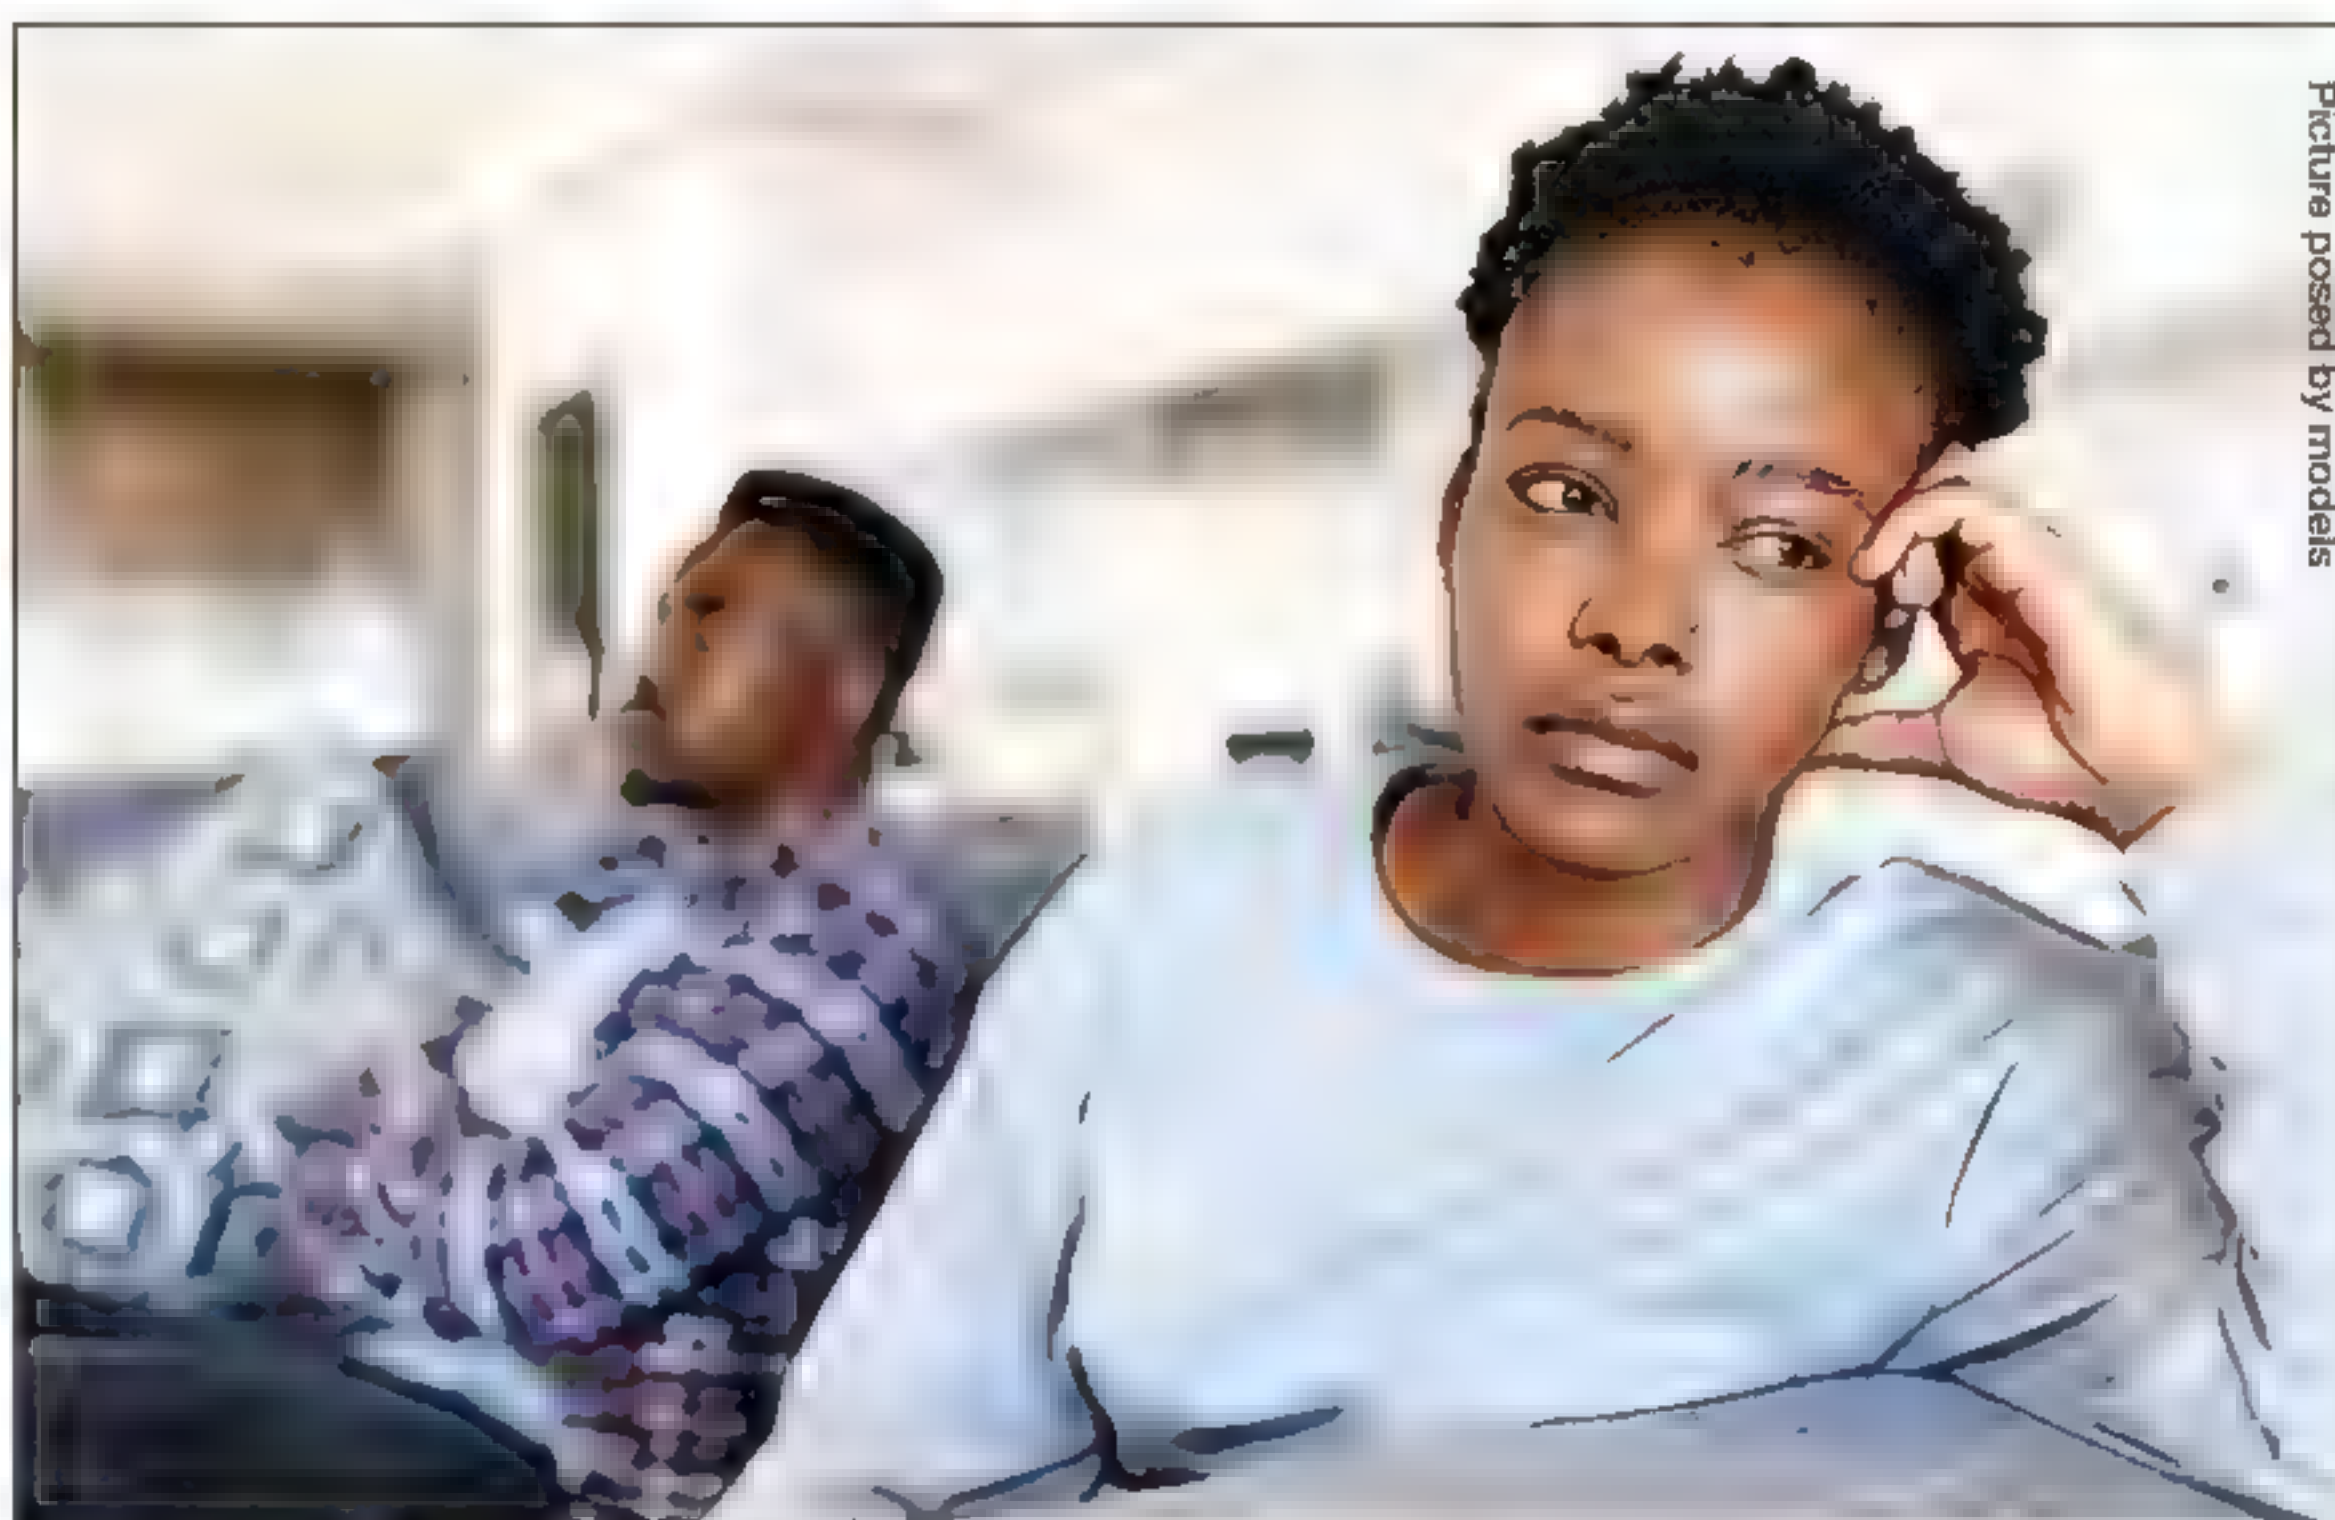

When they were together, he messed with some unpleasant people and did stupid things.

I've told him I don't want to hear the details, but I get the impression that while he was drinking heavily and using drugs. He was a hot headed fool.

Now he is sober and sensible after a scary brush with the law, but his ex continues to haunt us.

Of course, she's not stupid enough to use the word "black-mail" but that's what it amounts to. She won't go until we give her what she believes she is due.

Apparently, she protected him and lied for him when his enemies were circling. She believes

Picture posed by models

DARK SECRETS: His past mistakes could come back to haunt you if you are not careful that if it weren't for her, he'd be history by now.

My guy begs me to trust him. He says if he can just give it time and placate her, we'll be free.

But will we? What's to stop her from coming back for more? He swears he loves me and that he's learnt his lesson after behaving like a muppet as a younger man.

JANE SAYS: This all sounds way too complicated and unpleasant for my liking.

Why don't you tell your man to go away, sort out his issues, and come back to you once he's solvent and free? We all make mistakes in life.

It sounds as if he was headstrong and reckless as a younger man. He played fast and loose with some "interesting" characters and his ex-girlfriend was with him on the ride.

But that was then and this is now. She can't continue to put pressure on him and bleed him dry for ever.

As for them still having sex, that's outrageous and completely unacceptable.

I fully understand why you don't wish to hear the details about what went on, but what about your safety? Are there still people out there who are angry and after him? Is there unfinished business that you might get caught up in? I don't mean to go all "Godfather" on you, but you've got to start thinking about yourself.

Tell him today that he's on his own. He started this mess, now he must end it.

Explain that your nerves can't take anymore – he's put you through too much.

Go and stay with friends or relatives while you think and get your head straight.

My gut feeling is that they are a toxic pair who are as bad as each other.

Used by 'friend' in need

I TOOK my friend in when her boyfriend threw her out.

I cooked her meals, washed her clothes, and gave her cash. In return she crashed out on my settee, talked on her phone and made a mess.

One day I came back to find she'd filled my house with strangers – she'd thrown an impromptu party with some drunken mates.

I asked her to leave when she started bringing lovers back for noisy sex.

Now she's living it up in LA. Apparently, she was never broke or desperate.

I'm so angry. She took advantage and has never said "thank you". How can people be so ungrateful?

JANE SAYS: You tried to do a kind thing and it backfired. Sadly, your friend is not the person you thought she was.

Far from being destitute, she was hoarding her cash.

Now you're left licking your wounds. It's naive of you to expect thanks because gratitude is rarely forthcoming.

Accept that you were stung and learn from this. Be more questioning in future – but don't allow yourself to become bitter or ungenerous.

She was in the wrong, not you.

Fear our love is numbered

I RECENTLY found a telephone number scribbled on a piece of paper in my boyfriend's work jacket.

He said a flirty female customer had pushed it into his hand a few weeks ago. Why didn't he screw it up and throw it away? I'm terrified that he has a back-up plan. Am I on my way out?

JANE SAYS: Calm down and think logically. He might have been flattered when the woman forced her number upon him, but if he's never called it, then she's not a threat.

Why would you be "on the way out"? Is your relationship in trouble? Start talking and stop assuming the worst.

Appleby treble

NEWMARKET trainer Charlie Appleby enjoyed a memorable Saturday night when saddling three winners in the United States and Canada. Modern Games booked his Breeders' Cup ticket with an impressive victory in the Woodbine Mile in Canada. Appleby's runner won the Breeders' Cup Juvenile Turf last year and added the Poule d'Essai des Poulains in the spring. Last seen chasing home Baaed in the Sussex Stakes in July, Modern Games came home five and a quarter lengths clear of the field under William Buick. Appleby (below) and Buick made it a Grade One double with Mysterious Night in the Summer Stakes. Nations Pride also got on the scoresheet in the States, lifting the 12-furlong Jockey Club Derby at Aqueduct. Partnered by Frankie Dettoni, Nations Pride won by an eased-down six and a quarter lengths.

Appleby's runner won the Breeders' Cup Juvenile Turf last year and added the Poule d'Essai des Poulains in the spring.

EULOGY TO THE QUEEN

She was the best of the best

ROYAL TRAINER PAYS TRIBUTE

ROYAL trainer Andrew Balding described The Queen as 'best of the best' on the eve of her funeral at Westminster Abbey today.

Balding, whose father Ian also trained for Her Majesty at his Kingsclere stables in Hampshire, said on Racing TV's Luck on Sunday programme: "I was extremely lucky, obviously, to inherit The Queen as an owner, but she was very supportive, as she was with a lot of young people, and it was a huge privilege to have had that opportunity."

"She had such a desire to see her horses that she had bred and see them race, obviously. "I hope she got a huge pleasure from most of it

by CHRIS GOULDING

anyway. She never put any pressure on you. "Everyone that had the great fortune to train for her, I think, would be totally committed to try and do their best."

"She was the best of the best, obviously as human and as a person, and as an owner, very much the best of the best."

Triple Cheltenham Gold Cup winning trainer Henrietta Knight, famed for her handling of Best Mate, paid an emotional tribute to Her Majesty.

"It's been a very moving week, to see the reaction of the people has just been mind boggling, really," said Knight.

"One lady had such a huge influence on the world."

"She was like God."

"She was a giver, she enjoyed life and looked to the future." Knight, retired from training in 2012, added: "She was passionate about her racing, she lived for it, along with everything else she did in her sense of duty."

"She was such a knowledgeable lady - she knew everything. The pedigrees, temperament and the well-being of all her horses brilliant."

Newmarket also paid tribute to The Queen when two of her racehorses cantered up the Warren Hill gallops with their riders wearing Her Majesty's famous purple and red royal silks.

Educator, bred by The Queen and partnered by Michael Hills, was joined by Saga, with Rab Havlin in the saddle, during the exercise in front of a huge and appreciative crowd.

Saga, beaten a head in the Britannia Stakes at Royal Ascot behind Thesis in June, has a Cambridgeshire entry at Newmarket this Saturday, for which he is currently a 20-1 shot.

Andy's teaser

IT MIGHT have been Andy Murray's 'Last Dance' in his homeland but Scotland's favourite sporting son has admitted there could yet be an encore.

Around 7,000 fans turned up at Glasgow's Emirates Arena yesterday to pay homage and he rewarded them with a 6-4 6-3 Davis Cup win over Kazakhstan's Dmitri Popko.

Murray (inset) said: "It was brilliant. It was the fullest it had been all week. "Maybe that's the last time I play here or get to play for Britain in front of a crowd like that but we also might be back here in February potentially.

"We'll just have to wait and see." British No.1 Cam Norrie lost 6-4 6-3 to world No.44 Alexander Bublik in the second singles match of the day.

In the doubles decider Joe Salisbury and Neal Skupski beat Bublik and Aleksandr Nedovyesov 7-6 6-7 7-6.

MOEEN FEELS A SENSE OF PRIDE

MOEEN ALI has expressed his pride at leading England in Pakistan.

But he rejected the suggestion the tourists have brought a second-string squad for the seven Twenty20 internationals.

Jos Buttler has made the trip but England's white-ball captain is wary of rushing his return from a calf injury sustained in The Hundred.

While there is optimism he could feature later on in the series, he will miss tomorrow's opener in Karachi, so Moeen takes on the captaincy role for

■ by RICHARD LEWIS

England's first fixture in Pakistan since late 2005.

Moeen, an English international of Pakistan descent, admitted it was a privilege to take the armband.

He said: "With my roots being from here and to lead England in such a big and historic series, it's huge.

"It's a very proud moment for me and my family."

Tom Helm, Luke Wood, Will Jacks and Jordan Cox are uncapped and Ollie Stone has not played a T20 for England.

With Harry Brook, Liam

Dawson, Ben Duckett, Richard Gleeson and Phil Salt yet to reach double digits in T20 caps, there is a fresher feel to England's 20-strong squad.

Moeen (pictured training, left) said: "I believe we are a very good white-ball team.

"White-ball players from England have been coming (here for the Pakistan Super League).

"Phil Salt is a fantastic player, Will Jacks and Harry Brook have done well in the PSL too.

"These guys are very, very good players, I wouldn't say they're second string."

BIG MAC 'N' PRIZE

Ryder Cup hopeful Robbo is so at home in Rome

■ by DARREN WITCOOP

SCOTLAND'S Robert MacIntyre beat US Open champion Matt Fitzpatrick in a play-off to win the Italian Open – and boost his hopes of grabbing a Ryder Cup place.

He birdied the first extra hole at Marco Simone Golf and Country Club in Rome, the venue for next year's Ryder Cup, after he and Fitzpatrick had finished tied on 14-under par – a shot ahead of France's Victor Perez.

Pre-tournament favourite Rory McIlroy, within a shot of the lead until hitting his tee shot on the 16th into the water, finished fourth on 12 under.

"This means everything," said MacIntyre. "I was down and out two or three months ago – I didn't know what I was doing, didn't know where to go.

"But we spoke to the right people, started working with (coach) Simon Shanks and I've hit two of the perfect golf shots into the last there. There's so much hard work gone into this.

"I hit a terrible shot on 15 which I thought was backs against the wall but I've got a dogged attitude and never give up. I get punched but I punch back.

"The birdies coming in were massive and thankfully I got one in the play-off."

Speaking about next year's Ryder Cup after winning the second qualifying event, the left-hander added: "It's my main goal, it's my only goal for the next year. I've done it on the golf course.

"At the start of the week I didn't think

ROB JOY: MacIntyre celebrates and (inset) embraces Fitzpatrick at the end

this week was going to be the one with the style of golf course, the way it was playing, but we worked on a few things on Tuesday and Wednesday and I felt so in control of my golf ball this week."

MacIntyre began the final round three shots off Fitzpatrick's lead, but stormed to the top of the leaderboard with six birdies in a front nine of 29. A bogey on the 10th briefly halted MacIntyre's charge before he birdied the 12th and 13th.

At that point he was three clear of Fitzpatrick, who had followed 10 straight pars with a birdie on the 11th.

However, Fitzpatrick then came agonisingly close to an albatross on the par-five 12th as his approach from 212 yards hit the centre of the pin and left him just three feet for eagle, while MacIntyre was dropping a shot on the 14th.

MacIntyre also bogeyed the 15th but birdied the 16th and 18th to set the clubhouse target, with Fitzpatrick also making a birdie on the final hole to force the play-off after dropping a shot on the 17th.

HOTSHOT: Nuchaturt

Robbo's happy to mix it up

■ by HECTOR NUNNS

NEIL ROBERTSON is delighted to be paired with reigning female world champion Mink Nuchaturt for this week's World Mixed Doubles.

The Thai sensation won the women's blue-riband tournament earlier this year, earning her a place on the main tour.

And she won her first match as a professional last month – beating Mitchell Mann in the qualifiers for the Northern Ireland Open.

Milton Keynes.

The Aussie said: "Of course I saw that Mink beat Mitchell Mann last month – and he is decent.

"I have been following her results even more closely since we were paired together.

"I follow the women's results anyway, I am always interested to see how they are going on tour, and also the overseas players, as I have had the same challenges.

"A lot of people saw the YouTube video of her making a 147 a couple of years ago. And it is going to be a really interesting and exciting event.

"The pairings are pretty evenly matches. We are all competitors and want to win it. It will be deadly serious."

SMASHER:
Alvarez lands a blow on Golovkin

KING CAN

Alvarez secures one Gol and targets another

CANELO ALVAREZ has his sights set on avenging his defeat to Dmitry Bivol after he finally settled his rivalry with Gennady Golovkin.

The Mexican superstar solidified his undisputed super-middleweight supremacy with a unanimous points win over his Kazakh foe in Las Vegas.

Canelo, 32, has lost only twice in his career – the first against Floyd Mayweather Jr in 2013 and the latest against Russian Bivol (inset) in May.

Alvarez may need surgery on a hand injury but he now intends to return to light-heavyweight to trigger a rematch with the WBA champion.

He said: "Of course, everybody knows [that's the fight]. We'll see what happens in that fight."

"It's very important for my legacy, for me, for my pride, for my country, for my family, for everything. It's important and I will beat him. I need rest. I need to come back and get strength back in my hand, recover my hand and get strength back in my body so I can come back stronger than ever."

by CHRIS McKENNA

There were doubts about the outcomes of the first two meetings of these warriors in 2017 and 2018.

Golovkin clearly won the first but it was judged a draw, while the second was close with Canelo getting the nod.

But with Golovkin now 40, he looked a shadow of the man who delivered those two epic battles.

In contrast, the third instalment was largely forgettable.

Golovkin started slowly and the Mexican was able to tee off on him.

But Canelo lacked zip and pace when the fight was there for him to get the stoppage he craved against the Kazakhstan star.

He was still in control and even when Golovkin did have some success in the later rounds, there was no risk Alvarez would fall to back-to-back defeats.

The only surprise was the closeness of the scorecards, with two of the three judges only giving the bout 115-113 to Canelo, which meant if they favoured Golovkin in one more round, it would have been a draw.

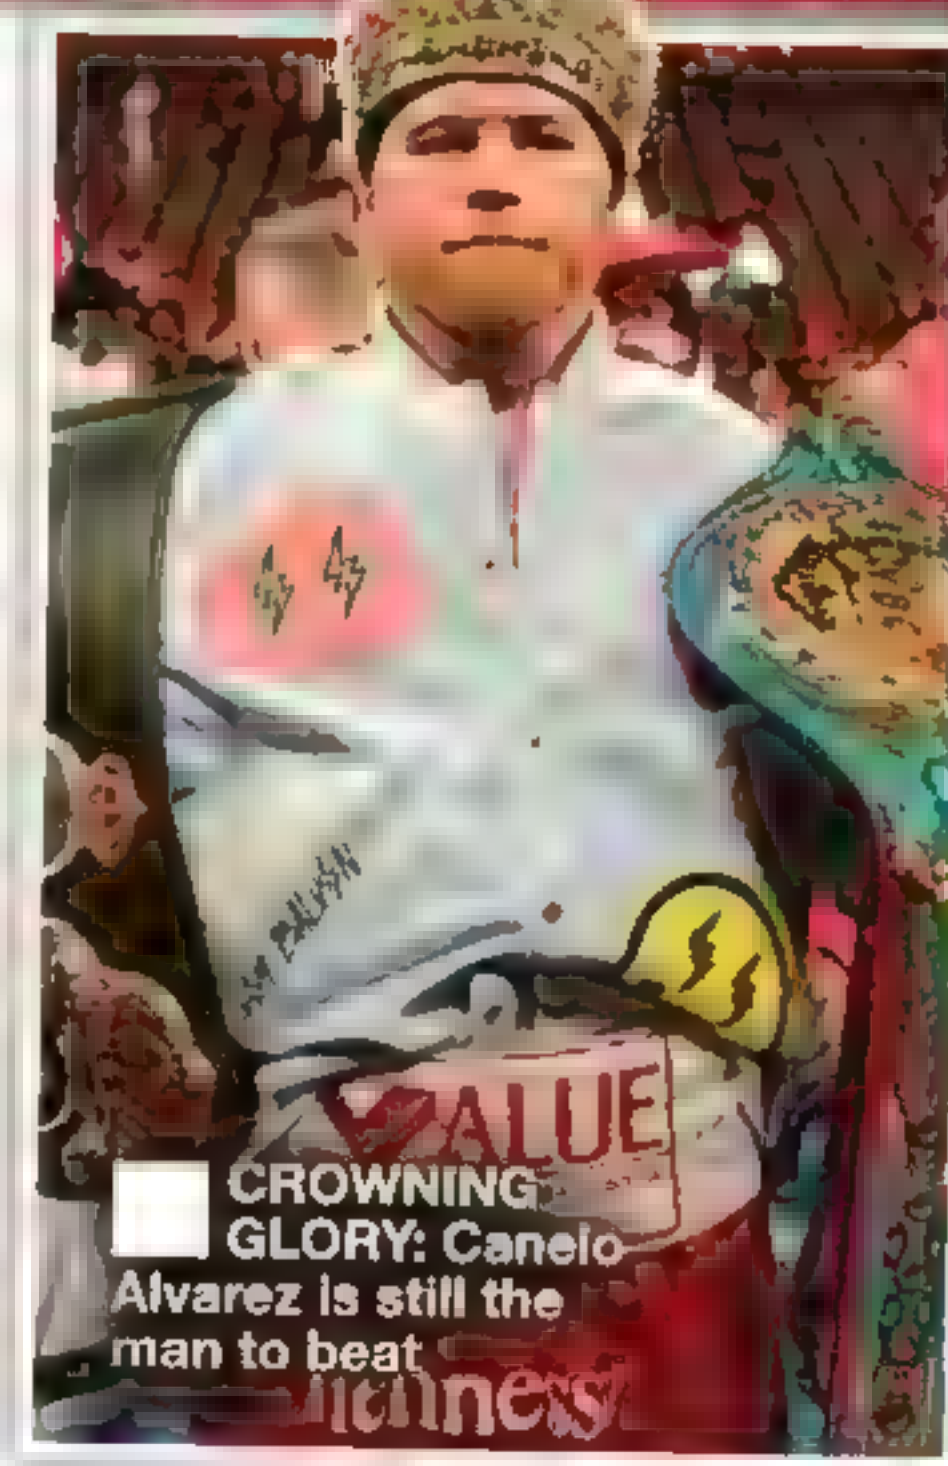

The other scorecard of 116-112 was closer to conveying the one-sided nature of the disappointing duel.

But at least the pair appeared to settle what had turned into a nasty and bitter rivalry.

"I've always said that I did not feel any animosity in this rivalry – he was the one who said it was personal," said Golovkin, who vowed to fight on after his second career loss.

"After the fight when we looked at each other in the eye, we had no claims on each other anymore. We said, 'Great fight' and we moved on."

"At this level this sport is dangerous and we were content with how this fight played out and how our rivalry ended."

Diamond despairs

by DARREN WITCOOP

WORCESTER director of rugby Steve Diamond admitted, following his side's battling defeat to Exeter, that the future of the crisis-hit club remains in serious doubt.

The Warriors met Friday's deadline to be allowed to fulfil yesterday's Premiership fixture, with debts spiralling as high as £25m and many players and staff yet to receive their full August salaries.

Diamond said after the 36-21 defeat to Exeter at Sixways: "I don't know how long we can keep going with this."

"There are limits to how many times players or staff can turn out on goodwill."

"We are hoping to fulfil the fixture with Gloucester on Wednesday."

"I'm hoping the money we've taken today can be used and not disappear down a black hole."

"With the winding-up application due in late September, a line has to be drawn somewhere."

CORY PROVES HE'S A CUT ABOVE AGAIN

by GARY HITCHCOCK

CORY SANDHAGEN reaffirmed his bantamweight title credentials at UFC Vegas 60 yesterday.

The No.4-ranked star had suffered back-to-back losses but won via fourth-round doctor stoppage against Song Yadong (inset right) at the Apex in Sin City.

Sandhagen busted open the rising Chinese prospect just above his left eye early in the fight with a vicious elbow and despite the efforts of his cutman between rounds, the ringside doctor eventually said enough was enough.

At the time of the stoppage, Sandhagen led 39-37 on one scorecard, with the other two judges having it even at 38-38.

Coloradan Sandhagen said: "Losing three times would have sucked, so thank God I got the win and a TKO. It was a good fight, maybe not a perfect fight, but it was a step in the right direction for me against a mega-tough guy."

"I really wanted a fifth round with him because I thought it was really close and I like seeing who I am in the fifth round."

"I like discovering who I am in the hardest positions and I didn't really get to do that."

"I knew if I kickboxed Song it would be a really close fight and it was."

"I think Song was the perfect opponent for me to test out the new things I was trying, but I am going to go back to the lab and get better and adjust."

BAST SAVES HIS BEST FOR LAST

ENEA BASTIANINI beat Pecco Bagnaia to win the MotoGP in Spain as points leader Fabio Quartararo tangled with Marc Marquez to blow the championship wide open.

Gresini Racing's Bastianini pipped his fellow Italian to the flag by just 0.042sec at Aragon after a slick last-lap move up the inside at turn seven, taking the win and helping Ducati clinch the constructors' title with five rounds still to go.

Bagnaia led into turn one as Bastianini, who had dropped to fourth, fought his way back up the order before hitting the front on lap eight.

But it lasted less than a lap as he ran wide, allowing Bagnaia back through and forcing him to chase to the final lap when he made his move, beating Bagnaia to the win with Aprilia's Aleix Espargaro third.

"I'm really happy to be back on the top step of the podium, it was a really good race," said

■ by ZOE BURN

Bastianini. "At the start, I made some contact with Aleix and lost some positions but in the end I pushed really hard to recover the gap to Pecco.

"In the last lap I was really close to him and I made the overtake and won this race.

"It is an amazing dream."

Reigning champion Quartararo watched his advantage over Bagnaia plummet from 30 points to 10 after clashing with Marquez on lap one.

Marquez, who had shot up from 13th to sixth at the start of his comeback race, had a moment coming out of turn three and with nowhere to go, Quartararo hit him from behind, crashing out.

With Yamaha bodywork now caught in the back of Marquez's Repsol Honda, he had a rear lock up moments later and was hit by LCR Honda's Takaaki Nakagami, who crashed out and forced Marquez to retire from the race.

Lambert has leapfrogged Bewley in their personal battle to become only the third Briton to win a medal since the series began in 1995.

SHOUT TO IMPRESS:
Leeds' stars celebrate semi-final win over Wigan

MATTY DOUBT TO IMPRESS

MATTY LEES says St Helens are ready to prove the doubters wrong again and make history.

The England prop (left) helped the champions edge past Salford 19-12 to set up another Grand Final appearance against Leeds on Saturday.

If Saints prosper, they will become the first club to win four successive Super League titles.

But they have reached Old Trafford on the back of a crippling injury list.

■ by DAVE CRAVEN

England centre Mark Percival made his return after four months out on Saturday and Sione Mata'utia also enjoyed a successful comeback.

Lees said: "It's been a tough year for all of us with injury.

"We speak about injuries and we've probably been hit the worst throughout the year but we've managed to cope and get on with it.

"And it's special to get to another Grand Final. It's making history at the end of the day and I think it'll really put us on the top spot.

"If we do beat Leeds, it'll knock everyone off who's really doubted us. There's a lot of people who really want to be where we're at and we're protecting that throughout the year. It should be a good one next week."

Joe Batchelor (two) and Jon Bennison scored tries as the defending champions battled past Salford, who lost hooker Andy Ackers to a tailed HIA in the opening exchanges.

Saints saw two players sin-binned, Morgan Knowles who will fear being banned for a 'chicken wing' tackle, and Tommy Makinson, who was lucky to not concede a penalty try when blocking Tim Lafai in the 75th minute.

Aussie Rohan ready to cap Rhino's incredible charge to trophy decider

ROHAN SMITH felt he had unfinished business in the UK - and Leeds' Super League Grand Final ride is just the start of him sorting it out.

Rhinos face champions St Helens in Saturday's showpiece after a remarkable run.

They were in 11th spot at Easter but, after Aussie Smith arrived in May, the club turned things around to sneak into fifth.

Leeds have then won on the road at Catalans and Wigan to reach Old Trafford and look a different side to the one that was on its knees just four months ago.

Many Rhinos fans were non-plussed by the little-known Smith's appointment - given he had never held a top-flight head coach's role - but his impact has been huge in his second stab over here.

Smith's first gig in the UK was with Bradford in 2016, before he headed home the following year when the troubled Championship club entered liquidation.

Looking back, he said: "I do feel like I had unfinished business.

"When we came to Bradford we packed up and came with the intention of no plan to go home in any sort of time frame.

"That went bad pretty quickly through no fault of probably any one individual.

"But even in 2017, not long after I'd gone home, I was always keeping an eye out for opportunities back in the UK.

"I love the passion and the desire that people have for their club. It's much deeper and wider than it is over in Australia. It's just not the same.

"What I've always loved about sport is being part of something with other people and the influence it can have on the community and next generation. It's special here and things have started to line-up for us. It's exciting going into Saturday."

by DAVE CRAVEN

But Leeds face Saints, who are bidding for a record-breaking fourth straight Grand Final win, without playmaker Aidan Sezer (inset)

The Australian scrum-half came off in Friday's semi-final win at Wigan following a high tackle from John Bateman that saw the England second-row red carded.

Leeds had hoped he would be cleared to play.

But Smith said: "Our doctor has been in conversation with the Super League chief medical officer and Aidan unfortunately won't be available.

"I believe the Category One symptoms are the determining factor in terms of returning to play, whether that be in the game or the following week.

"He's shattered. He's clearly disappointed to be missing out but such are the protocols that are in place to take care of the welfare of our players long term."

Asked if it was galling considering the concussion came from foul play, Smith said: "It's a part of the game unfortunately.

"Sometimes people will wear the consequences of accidents. I know those guys played together at Canberra, so I'm sure there's nothing untoward.

"It's tough, but it's one of those things."

Leeds will also be without second-row Morgan Gannon due to concussion, while star centre Harry Newman is out with an ongoing hamstring issue which has also ended his World Cup hopes with England.

Hats off to eager Beevers

YORK	4
LEEDS	12

TWO-TRY Caitlin Beevers hailed Leeds Rhinos' "togetherness" as they defeated York City Knights in the Women's Super League Grand Final.

Rhinos, who lost last year's decider against St Helens, won a tight encounter at Totally Wicked Stadium.

England centre Beevers scored a try in each half, with Courtney Winfield-Hill slotting two conversions.

York could not get off the mark until Sinead Peach dummied her way over in the 57th minute.

But too many errors cost the league leaders in the club's first Grand Final.

Beevers came up with some big defensive efforts as well to take the player-of-the-match award.

Rhinos forward Shannon Lacey was stretched off with a serious leg injury early in the second half but her side battled through to be crowned champions.

Beevers said: "There's no doubt York are a really tough side.

"They definitely put us through our paces and it was a phenomenal game for women's rugby league.

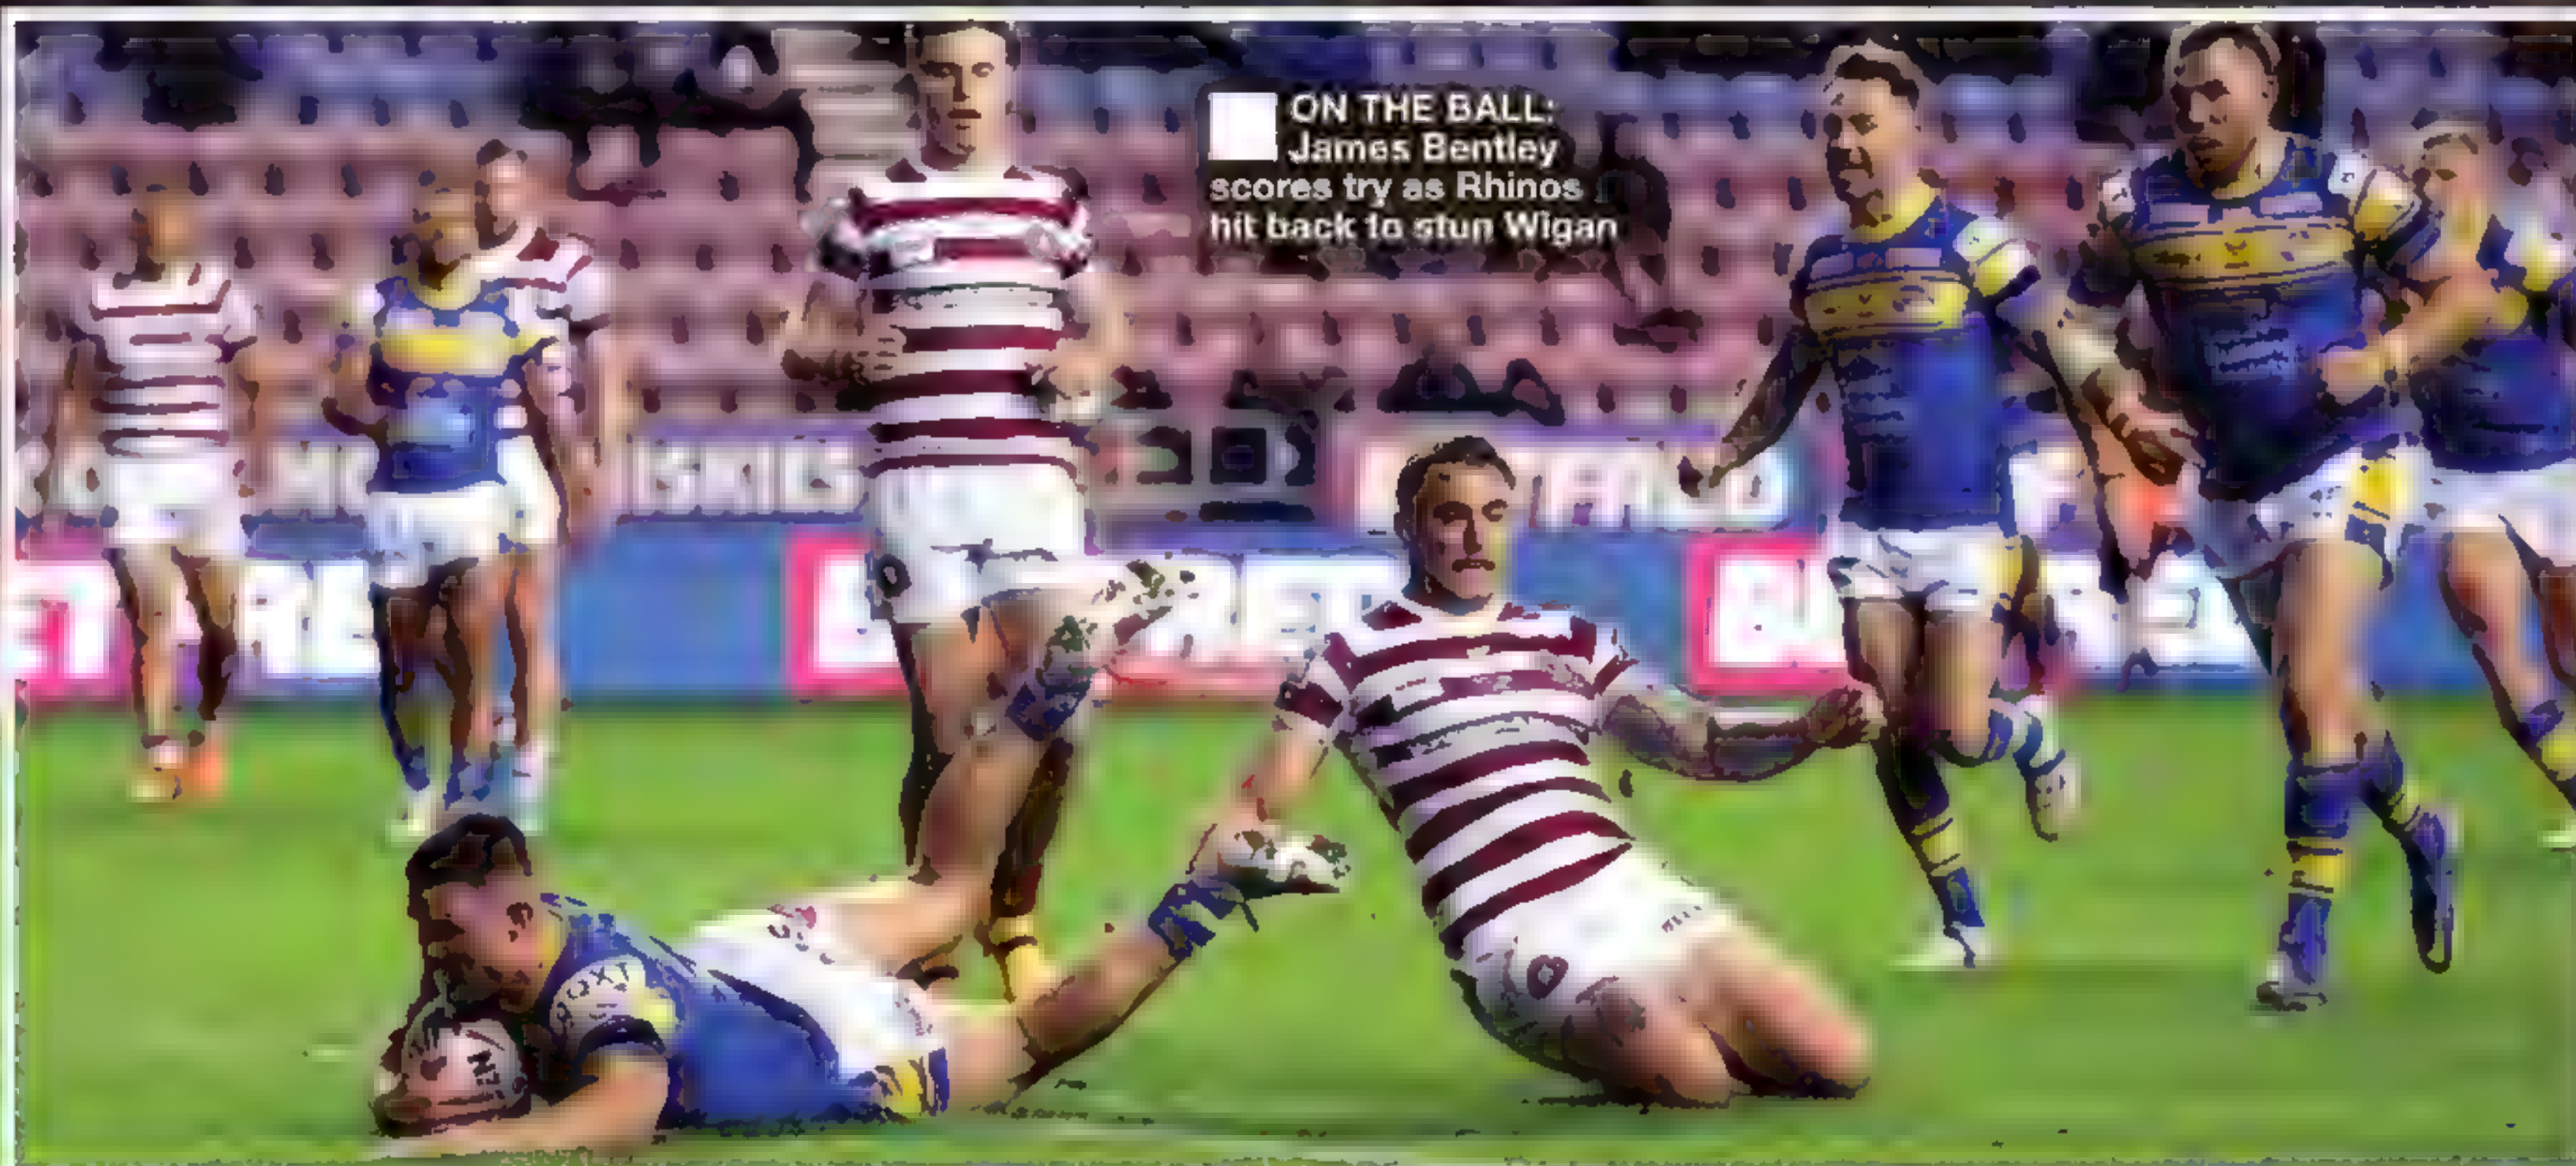

"Since they beat us earlier in the season, we've been really looking in depth at what they do on the field and we've worked really hard on this game.

"We've found a real togetherness in the team and I don't think any side could match that so I'm very proud of the girls today."

York coach Lindsay Anfield said: "We made some bad decisions and there was a little bit of poor execution.

"But credit to Leeds. They came out all guns blazing and have been fantastic all season. We'll learn from it and come back better next year."

Philips still has World Cup shot

PEP GUARDIOLA insists Kalvin Phillips can still make the World Cup – even though the Manchester City midfielder faces shoulder surgery.

Phillips (inset) was not in City's squad for Saturday's 3-0 victory at Wolves, despite a late substitute appearance against Borussia Dortmund last Wednesday.

Boss Guardiola said: "He has a problem with the shoulder again and maybe needs surgery in the next few days.

"I am not a doctor but in a good way he can arrive of course at the World Cup.

"The doctors say the only solution is to have surgery."

■ by JAMES NURSEY

Since his £45m summer move from Leeds, Phillips has made only three sub appearances, totalling 14 minutes.

Asked if this setback was frustrating, Guardiola added: "Absolutely – for us as well.

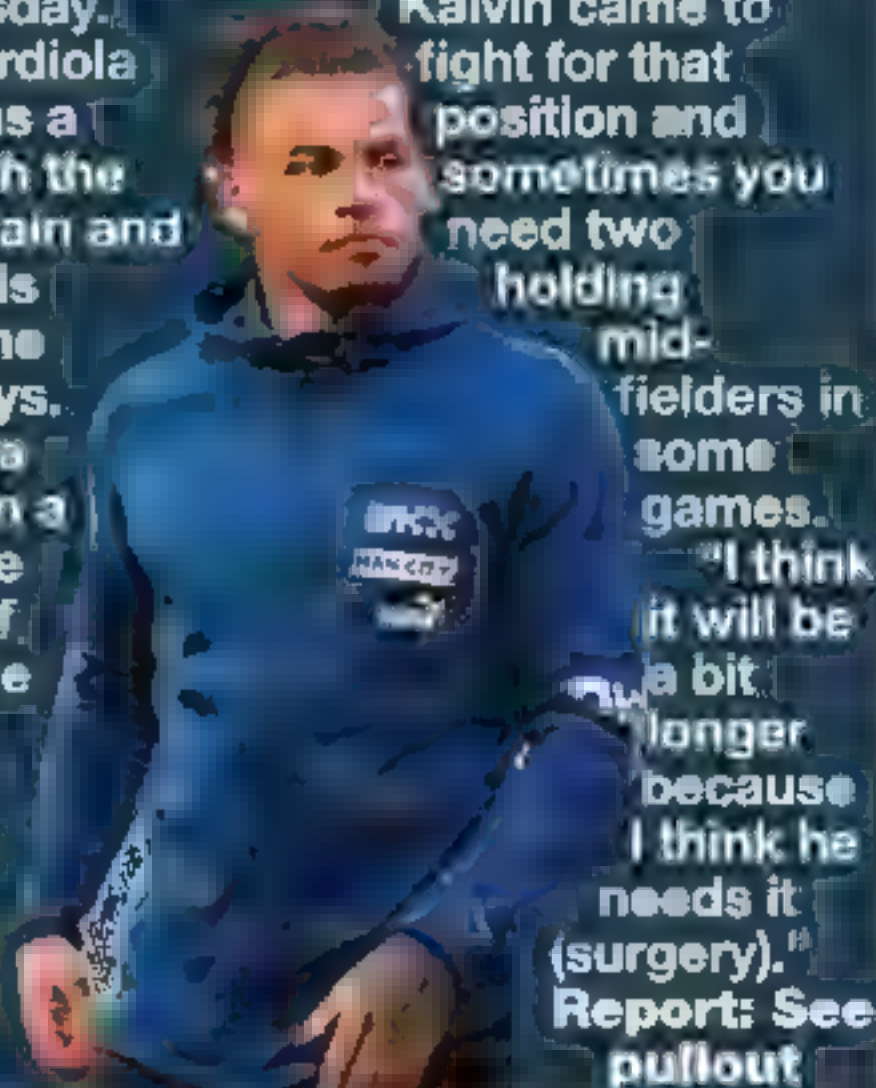

"We need him because Rodri cannot play all the games.

Kalvin came to fight for that position and sometimes you need two holding midfielders in some games.

"I think it will be a bit longer because I think he needs it (surgery)."

JONES TOPS LIST

■ by ROB COLE

NATHAN JONES, the man who led Luton into the Championship play-offs last season, is favourite to take over from Steve Morison at Cardiff.

Morison yesterday became the latest boss to lose his job in the Welsh capital following Saturday's 1-0 defeat at Huddersfield.

Jones has already left Luton once to try his hand at Stoke, but quickly returned and has now spent five years at Kenilworth Road.

Another Welshman, Tony Puls, is also in the running, according to the bookies, along with former Burnley boss Sean Dyche.

Morison's assistant Mark Hudson will be caretaker, with the help of Tom Ramasut.

Four of the last seven Cardiff managers have failed to get to 50 games in the past eight years as owner Vincent Tan and chairman Mehmet Dalman continually wield the axe.

Toon in to Isak orders Trippier

KIERAN TRIPPIER has told Newcastle to find Alexander Isak's strengths.

The club record £60m signing had a quiet game but netted the penalty equaliser in Saturday's 1-1 draw with Bournemouth to take his tally to two goals since his move from Real Sociedad.

Isak (inset) has not yet lived up to his billing but Toon defender Trippier, who faced him in La Liga while at Atletico Madrid, said: "He's slotted in straight away and in training and games it's like he's been here for ages.

"But it's more about

■ by SIMON BIRD developing as a team and finding his strengths.

"Everyone has seen what he's all about. When Allan Saint-Maximin and Callum Wilson come back, we'll be an even bigger threat.

"We've got an all-round striker at such a young age. He'll keep growing and will keep scoring goals for us.

"But we need goals from all over the pitch. We've created so many chances the last couple of games. We just need to start putting them in."

Toffees ace blasts back in style after sticky patch

FRANK LAMPARD wrapped his arms around match-winner Neal Maupay at the final whistle.

It was a long embrace for the man who finally got Everton's first win of the season with a moment of class in a game otherwise lacking such high quality.

Not that the Toffees will care about how entertaining the game was.

They have had the performances this season, but missed out on the wins. Finally they got the latter at the seventh attempt.

Progress in performances do not move you up the table. Points do. They are going in the right direction on both fronts now.

both. This was the fifth Premier League defeat of the season so far for David Moyes' side.

More worryingly, it is 11 from the last 18 league games they have lost, stretching back into last season.

That suggests there is more wrong than just summer signings not yet settling in for the Hammers.

The Toffees' four draws in a row before this had lifted the mood on the blue half of Merseyside a little.

But boss Lampard knows he will not be judged on performances alone. This is a results business.

Going into the international break without a victory would leave some worry. However, that was removed here.

The lack of Dominic Calvert-Lewin in the squad will have sparked concern as the Toffees still await their star striker to return.

But Maupay, a £15m signing from Brighton, stepped up to show that he can fill in for him.

There were rightly questions when Everton turned to the French forward in the summer as they scoured the market for a goalscorer.

Maupay had not been prolific in a Brighton side which created chances

MOYES 'LET DOWN' BY HAMMERS

From Back Page
 on Thursday night, so you have to take that into consideration as well and we are trying to put new players in, get the best out of them and find out a bit about them.

"But today I found out little bits, mainly about the players I already knew about. They were the players in the main who let me down today with play overall."

"The players who played last year are down on their level as well."

"We have got a good enough team but we need to start showing it, that's for sure."

West Ham have brought in eight new signings this summer at a cost of about £140m.

But Moyes admits he spotted they needed to strengthen last February, which adds to the worrying stat they have lost 11 of their last 18 league games, stretching back into the previous campaign.

He said: "I recognised back in February time that we weren't quite as strong."

"We chose not to bring anyone in back in January and I could see it."

"I'm the one who takes the responsibility and I've got to get those players back at that level quickly - and hopefully we will do that."

Maupay's second-half strike secured Everton's first win of the season and also ended a goalless run for the Toffees' £15m summer signing which stretched back to February.

The former Brighton forward (inset above with Lampard) said: "I wouldn't say I feel under pressure (to score). I know my job, I have to score."

"That's why they brought me in. I'm here to help. I trust my team-mates to put me in the right position to score."

FLOWER POWER: Frank Lampard and David Moyes with tributes to The Queen aplenty. So why was there confidence at Goodison Park that he could become ruthless for a team which is less creative in the final third?

This does not end the debate on him, but it is one in the side of the argument that he can get goals regularly.

His strike lit up a game which lacked intensity.

Alex Iwobi played the ball into Maupay and he cushioned it in such a way that he could swivel away from Thilo Kehrer.

His finish was impressive, certainly for a man who had been without a goal since February to end a career-worst 12-game run of blanks.

But if he was ever going to end a drought in front of goal, then it was against the Hammers.

He's now scored on his last three Premier League starts against them.

The winner came in the 53rd minute after a forgettable first half.

West Ham and Moyes are now left to stew about their horror start over the international break, with the club sitting in the bottom three.

Jarrod Bowen tried his best to conjure something. Substitute Said Benrahma cracked the inside of the post with Everton keeper Asmir Begovic, in for the injured Jordan Pickford, only able to watch it pass by.

Begovic tipped a Maxwell Cornet shot over before the West Ham winger ran the ball out of play as he tried to round the keeper later on.

The Hammers failed to get a grip of the game. Declan Rice (far left) was simply outshone in midfield by Everton's Idrissa Gueye.

They have only beat Aston Villa so far in the league this season and they have scored just three league goals.

New recruits have not hit the ground running but, as ex Everton boss Moyes said after, those who were here before the summer have also dropped below their best.

He led them to consecutive eighth-place finishes in Serie A, before accepting an offer to join Shakhtar Donetsk. He left in July due to the war after winning the Ukrainian Super Cup.

De Zerbi was Brighton's first choice to replace Potter, who jumped ship to Chelsea this month following the Blues' shock decision to sack Thomas Tuchel.

De Zerbi will be officially unveiled as Brighton's new manager tomorrow afternoon, with the club delaying the press conference as a mark of respect to The Queen, whose state funeral is at Westminster Abbey this morning.

"I'm absolutely thrilled Roberto has agreed to become our new head coach," said Albion chairman Bloom.

"Roberto's teams play an exciting and courageous brand of football and I'm confident his style and tactical approach will suit our existing squad superbly."

De Zerbi's first game in charge of Brighton will come against Liverpool at Anfield on October 1.

THIS time it was a nice kick about for the men, not the boys.

Unless you count the record-breaking Ethan Nwaneri, who Mikel Arteta brought on for the final minutes at the age of just 15.

Much to Ivan Toney's frustration, it is an impressively different Arsenal team that go into the international break with a smile on their faces than the one that started last season so dismally.

"Nice kick about with the boys," the latest call-up to the England squad had tweeted after the Bees' comfortable 2-0 win last August sparked a three-match losing run that sent the Gunners spiralling to the foot of the table. Now they sit at the top and Arteta can snuggle up to his Manager-of-the-Month gong having exorcised the curse as he promised he would, so he could "sleep with it" for the next few weeks.

From the opening minutes this time, Arsenal were an entirely different outfit.

Usually London clubs who venture out along the A4 to the Gtech Community Stadium and, before that, Griffin Park, come a cropper - Brentford winning 13 of the 17 previous league derbies, drawing three and losing just one.

However, with Gunners skipper Granit Khaka joined in midfield by fit-again Thomas Partey, their no-nonsense athleticism gave the visitors instant control of the midfield.

Behind them, Gabriel Magalhaes seems to have pumped iron all summer and was proving more than a physical match for an increasingly isolated Toney.

At the same time, his defensive partner William Saliba gave a superb demonstration of his own power by heading Arsenal in front after just 17 minutes.

Mikel Arteta's men a comfortable win.

Nwaneri, who attends St John's Prep and Senior School in Enfield, played for England Under-16s when he was 14 and now features for Arsenal Under-18s. He was called into the senior squad after injuries and wore No.83.

Arteta said: "It was a pure gut feeling. I met the boy and really liked what I saw. He's trained a couple of times with us."

"I told him yesterday that he was going to be with us and that he had to be ready. The boy just looks in your eyes and he's ready."

"He deserved it. It sends a really strong message about who we are as a club as well."

Arsenal went back top after Saturday wins for Manchester City and Tottenham and Arteta added: "We are top of the league, I am so happy."

"I was so annoyed because we lost it and we are used to that and want to get back there and show that we want to be there."

WORTH THE WAIT: Fabio Viera celebrates his goal with Khaka (right) and Saliba before young Gun Ethan Nwaneri (above) made history

Mikel's leaders stay on message

Saka's outswinging corner hit the far post and was clawed away by David Raya, but not before the ball had crossed the line, as the technology confirmed just moments later.

Arsenal continued to dominate and doubled the lead after 28 minutes when Khaka clipped an uncharacteristically delicate chip into the area for Gabriel Jesus, straining his neck muscles, to power back across goal and past Raya.

His spiralling dance was in support of international team-mate Vinicius Jr, who was criticised in Spain for doing something similar in the Madrid derby. He then span away with his fingers to his ear, telephone-style – perhaps suggesting that Brazil coach Tite give him a call having overlooked him for the friendlies against Ghana and Tunisia.

Effectively, the game was over before half an hour but, maybe because of Toney's Twitter intervention last season, Arsenal still had plenty to say for themselves.

They were at their most eloquent just after half time, with new signing Fabio Vieira, in the starting line-up with Martin Odegaard injured on the eve of the game, pausing 25 yards out to curl the ball in off the near upright. With the Bees hardly able to lay a glove on Arsenal, Arteta could even treat Gunners fans to a glimpse of the future.

He brought on Nwaneri who, at 15 years and 181 days, is the youngest-ever Premier League player.

Gunners supporters sang: "How st must you be, he's only 15. He's got school in the morning."

They finished with: "Ivan Toney, a stroll in the park" – proving you can send out a pretty strong message the old-fashioned way without the need for social media.

THOMAS WILL BEE STAYING

■ by JOHN CROSS
THOMAS FRANK has pledged his future to Brentford – despite admiring glances from Premier League rivals.

Bees boss Frank was last week linked with Brighton and Leicester and took it as a big compliment, even if he insists he is not interested.

Asked about the links after the defeat to Arsenal, Frank said: "Very simple answer. I'm here at Brentford, very happy."

"Arsenal showed a lot of respect and we must have done something well."

The Dane also insisted it is not a distraction.

He added: "Can't speak for the players, but I'm reading very little, these rumours."

"I've been told to be a little aware of it if you get questions and of course it's nice to be linked with it because we have done well."

Brentford had an off day while Arsenal were at their best and Frank admitted it needed the opposite to cause an upset.

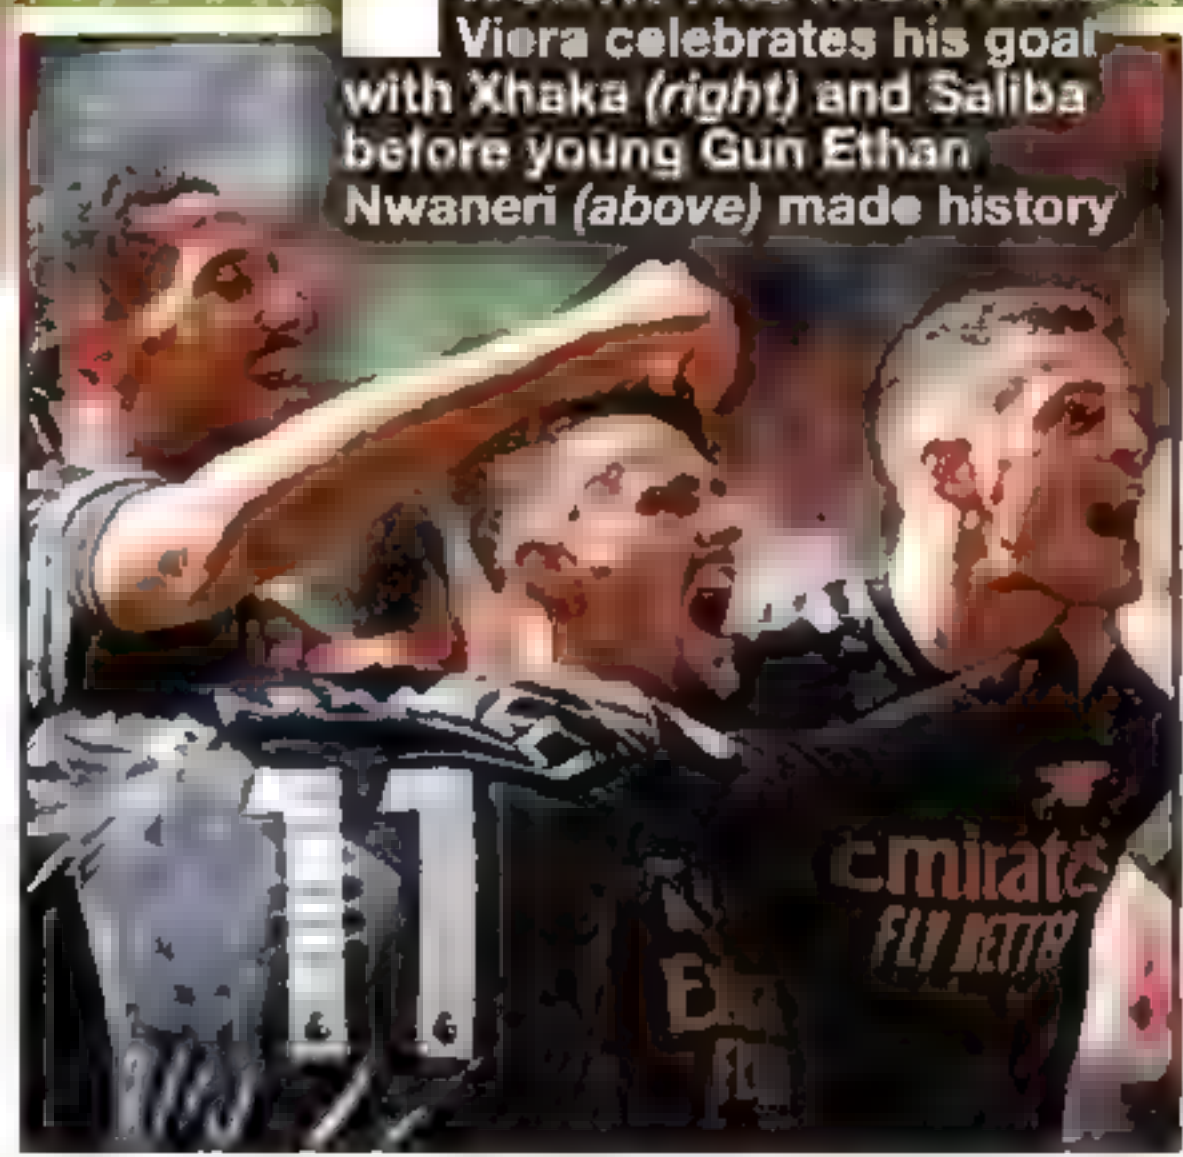

He said: "It's never as good as it looks and it's never as bad as it feels."

"For example, when we beat Man United 4-0, it was well deserved but probably not 4-0 and today when we lost 3-0 to Arsenal, it was well deserved but maybe not as dominant as 3-0."

"They are the form team with Man City and to get anything we had to perform at 10 out of 10."

"But you could also see how much it meant to Arsenal."

"Look how they celebrated the first goal, big huddle. They had to work very, very hard."

BUNDLE OF JOY: Ryan Manning opens scoring

Manning proves he is the daddy

SWANSEA 3 HULL 0

RYAN MANNING is shaking off being kicked out of the Republic of Ireland family to emerge as the big daddy at Swansea.

The defender led the way with their first goal and turned in the kind of display that must leave Ireland fans wondering why the 26-year-old was omitted from their Nations League squad.

It came just 48 hours after Manning announced that he and his partner are expecting their first child in March.

His celebration involved the customary ball-up-the-jumper, I'm-gonna-be-a-dad routine.

Manager Russell Martin reckons his left-back is already a father figure in a young squad and Manning said: "I have taken on more responsibility as I've got older.

"I provide guidance for the younger ones, but there are a few good characters in our group.

"There's good banter on the training ground," He fired a sweet volley into the far corner in the 61st minute after his teammates had struck the woodwork three times.

Luke Cundle and Joel Piroe – his fourth goal in five games – then extended the lead as Hull's horrible defence fell to pieces.

Manning added: "If we can really knuckle down and start taking our chances, then I think there is such an opportunity to go up this season."

Four straight defeats for woeful Hull have left boss Shota Arveladze on the brink, although he survived a Saturday night meeting with owner Acun Ilkcali.

Midfielder Regan Slater said: "The second goal was a shambles. Individual mistakes are really costing us at the moment.

"We've exchanged words in the changing room. No one is happy.

"Things need to change because we are not losing 1-0, we are losing by 2-0 or 3-0 and that shows where we're at."

them all." Had Duncan Watmore had his shooting boots on, Middlesbrough would have won this one.

But while he lacked composure, he still looked the one player capable of making a difference.

Too many of Watmore's team-mates are down on confidence, none more so than Isaiah Jones.

Boro boss Chris Wilder said: "Isaiah is a young lad who did fabulously well after breaking into senior football and these things happen.

"It won't be the last time he goes through a period like this but he's still having a go – their wing-backs are real athletes but he always wanted to take them on."

JUMPING JACK FLASH

SHOUT-STANDING Jack Grealish roars with delight after scoring the opener

Great to see the Greal deal unleashed says De Bruyne

KEVIN DE BRUYNE believes it was no coincidence that fans saw the best of Jack Grealish on Saturday.

The pressure has been building on the former Aston Villa star, who has been craving more goals and assists as he bids to live up to his £100m price tag since arriving at Manchester City.

But Grealish wasted no time in silencing some of his doubters with a vintage display at Molineux after he opened the scoring in just 55 seconds.

De Bruyne said: "If you start in the way we did, it is an incentive to say, 'OK, I got a goal and I am maybe a little more free in my mind to do what I need to do'."

"Sometimes as a football player there are periods you find the net easily and then there are other periods where it is a little bit harder. For him playing forward and to start this way makes it a little bit easier."

From the moment Grealish opened his account for this term, he produced the type of trademark display which earned him his big-money move last summer.

The ball seemed stuck to his foot as he took players on at will and left defenders trailing.

Wolves stopper Nathan Collins was his biggest victim. The centre-back dived in with a wild and high lunge in the 33rd minute and was sent off.

De Bruyne also gave an insight to the adjustments Grealish has had to make from being a big fish in a 'losing team' at Villa while dealing with niggling injuries and negative opinions of his critics.

He added: "Critics are there when you are a good player. If you set certain standards for yourself, then everyone is going to measure you to these standards.

■ by JAMES NURSEY

"He has been struggling with some injuries but has been playing good to me.

"He started pre-season well and he was sharp but then in the second game, at Bournemouth, he did his ankle a bit. Be patient, I am not too worried. He is fine.

"Jack was at Villa before and if you lose a game sometimes it is not the end of the world. But if we lose a game it is different.

"We have to perform every week and win games. That is the difference and what he has had to adjust to.

"But as long as we win the games, and he is doing a good job for us, that is all that matters."

With Grealish running amok, there was plenty of space and time in the 16th minute for Erling Haaland to score for the seventh consecutive game – taking his tally to 14 goals in nine games for City.

Wolves' hopes of a comeback were effectively ended when Collins was sent off and they never looked likely to add to their paltry tally of three league goals so far this season with Raul Jimenez injured and Diego Costa in the stands.

Phil Foden completed City's victory by flicking in De Bruyne's low cross midway through the second half.

HUDDERSFIELD 1 CARDIFF 0

MICHAL HELIK hopes history can repeat itself for him at Huddersfield.

He was at Barnsley two years ago when Valerien Ismael replaced Gerhard Struber and they reached the play-offs after a grim start to the season.

The Poland centre-half (inset) believes Town can also bounce back when a new man eventually replaces Danny Schofield, who was sacked last week.

Helik, who joined from Barnsley on deadline day, starred in this win. It was only their second this season and the Terriers are still second bottom of the table.

He said: "It's a tough time for the players when a manager changes."

"I had the same situation when I arrived at Barnsley. Gerhard Struber left after a few weeks.

"The new coach Valerien Ismael came and we were performing really good and we got to the play-offs – and I believe that Huddersfield can repeat that."

"I'm a positive guy. I believe this could be a good thing for us."

Jordan Rhodes bagged the winner on eight minutes.

Cardiff were handed a lifeline when Andy Rinomhota was fouled in the box, but Callum Robinson's poor penalty was saved by Lee Nicholls.

Defeat spelt the end for Bluebirds boss Steve Morison, who was sacked yesterday.

LUTON 2 BLACKBURN 0

REECE BURKE praised Luton's six-goal hitman Carlton Morris for kick-starting their season.

Morris, the Hatters' £1.5m record summer signing from Barnsley, kept up his hot form to score with a quality finish and help his side to a first home win this term.

Defender Burke, who scored the second, said: "That was a big home win for us. We've had a slow start to the season but our performances have deserved more."

"Carlton's a big, powerful lad. He's difficult to play against in training and he's the same at weekends – he's a nightmare."

"He was brilliant for us today. I hope he carries on getting his goals because he's helping the team massively."

"The way the game was going we were all over them, so it was only a matter of time before we got the second goal and I'm happy I got it – it was what we needed."

This stinging defeat for Blackburn saw them drop out of the top six. They do not do draws, and have now won five and lost five of their opening 10 games.

Yet their Rovers boss Jon Dahl Tomasson remains calm.

He said: "We did okay in the first half but didn't do the right things in the second. Luton were getting joy with their pressing and we couldn't deal with that."

"I prefer to look at the bigger picture and I will keep saying it – this team can play very good and not that good."

"We need to find consistency over time, which we will do."

WATCH AND LEARN: Boss Eddie Howe admits Newcastle need to be more creative

Europe's gone Dan the pan

TOON HOPES CRASH AND BURN

DAN BURN admits Newcastle might have to delay their ambition of qualifying for Europe.

Eddie Howe conceded his side were "difficult to watch" and lacking in creative quality as they face a new challenge this season.

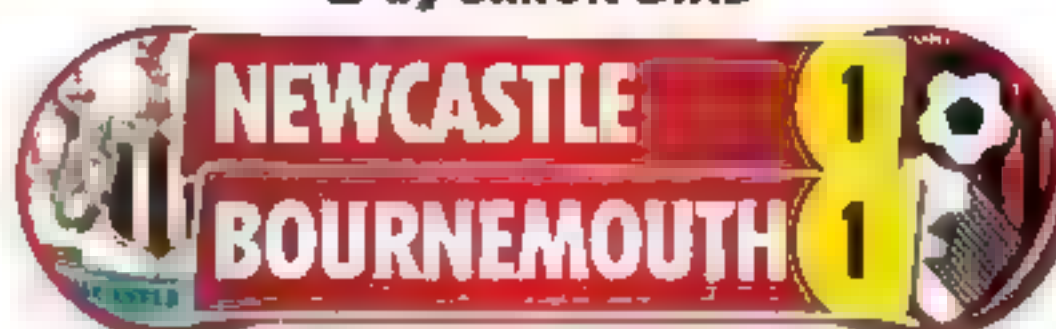

They had 73 per cent of the ball but couldn't break down resilient Bournemouth and are now without a win in six league games as rivals bank up and hit them on the break.

Add to that the low-key performance of record £60m buy Alexander Isak, who found it tough to get involved, and Howe has some tactical rethinking to do.

Burn gave an honest assessment of where the Geordies stand right now after a year of big spending – £200m on the rebuild so far – with results not matching the pre-season hype.

Asked if Tyneside optimism had been punctured, the defender said: "A little bit.

■ by SIMON BIRD

As a fanbase we are like that anyway. We always get ahead of ourselves.

"It has been like that since I was a kid. We have to be realistic the way we look at the takeover and how we are building our squad. Realistic, but we should still have targets in our head."

"Europe is pushing it a bit but we should be pushing top 10 comfortably. Hopefully we can reset after the international break."

"Everything felt a bit flat (in the stadium) and felt a bit weird, maybe with The Queen passing. Without the flags, too. Obviously we have to pay our respects and it was one of those days."

Isak notched a penalty to equalise after VAR sent referee Craig Pawson to the monitor to rather harshly rule Jefferson Lerma had handled a cross. Perhaps Newcastle were owed a break from VAR after recent controversies.

The Cherries had taken the lead through Philip Billing, who flicked home Jordan Zemura's left-wing cross.

Burn summed up the new problem the Toon have, adding: "Frustrating. It was hard to break them down when they put everyone behind the ball and we will come across that a lot this season. Teams trying to take the sting out of it and dampen the crowd down. It is two points lost."

"It is a change of mentality and we have to find ways of breaking them down. We need to string a run together. Not getting beaten is good mentality-wise. But we might look back at the end of the season at these games when we could have picked up more points.

"Generally performances have been pretty good but that was the first one where we have looked back and it was below our usual standards."

"We are doing work around the box. It hasn't come off. We are missing some big players, too, a bit of quality, and there are fine margins in football."

Allan Saint-Maximin has had an injury setback and could even miss the trip to Fulham a week on Saturday, but Callum Wilson is close to a comeback.

Howe said: "We're going to have to be better with the ball. We'll have to be more creative and show a bit more patience with the ball, too. We're going to have to get behind teams a bit more than we did here, especially if they play so deep."

"There's a lot for us to take from this game and take into future challenges."

LINE CALL: Zian Flemming 'scores the Millwall opener'

Rowett's goal to back Flemming

MILLWALL 2 BLACKPOOL 1

MILLWALL manager Gary Rowett insists the club will fight for record signing Zian Flemming after his first 'goal' was officially given against the Blackpool goalkeeper.

An early header from the £1.7m Dutchman crossed the line by millimetres via a save from Daniel Grimshaw and a post.

But the incident is heading for the EFL's Dubious Goals Committee as the keeper's second touch looked to be after the ball crossed the line.

Even referee Darren Bond had awarded the goal to the forward, who is desperate to get off the mark after a switch from Fortuna Sittard.

The panel will sit after the Bank Holiday and Rowett said: "If there is any doubt, the striker should get the goal. It is certainly something we will ask about. I am pleased with Zian and I think he'll get better and better."

■ by HECTOR NUNNS

After the Lions took the lead in the 14th minute, teenager Charlie Patino levelled just past the half-hour mark.

The 18-year-old, on loan from Arsenal, began and finished a fine move.

But striker Benik Afobe secured just a second win in seven for Millwall after 63 minutes.

Blackpool boss Michael Appleton hailed the display from Patino and admitted his injury-hit squad would benefit from the international break.

He said: "The goal chalked off a good display from Charlie and with the players and characters we are missing, the break is coming at a good time."

Paul's passion play pays off

WIGAN 0 READING 1

PAUL INCE hailed his side's performance as "full of passion" as Reading shook off their midweek defeat to move up to third in the table.

Prior to the game the Royals had managed only one goal on the road and were coming off the back of a shock 3-0 home loss to Sunderland.

After a lacklustre first half, it was Paul's son Tom (inset) who settled the game with a sublime free-kick, ensuring victory for the Berkshire side and leaving the Latics winless from their five home matches this term.

Ince Snr said: "Irrespective if we'd won the game, lost the game, or drew the game, I thought the lads put in a brilliant performance to bounce back from the defeat to Sunderland. It was a performance full of passion. We looked solid, structured and there were people putting their heads in there to win the ball.

"Once we got a foothold and the goal we played some lovely stuff and I felt we deserved to be in front."

The only goal came on 63 minutes when Tom Ince was brought down by Max

Power on the right-hand edge of the box.

Ince's sumptuous left-footed strike sailed past Ben Amos and into the top right-hand corner.

Wigan rallied late on and boss Leam Richardson took the positives, saying:

"I felt it was a game we could have won. We had the momentum, we had the possession without turning it into penetration."

"But this league is unforgiving. If you're not at it, teams will ask you questions."

JUST THE TRICK:
Son coolly slots home his third goal

IN A crazy episode of Six and the City, hat-trick hero Heung-min Son shared a long hug with his "killer" fitness coach.

Move over, Sarah Jessica Parker. This was proper prime-time entertainment.

Although Tottenham won't win the title with such scatterbrain defending, at least their South Korean striker is back where he belongs – as the life and Seoul of the party.

Son's stunning impact from the bench certainly stole the show against Leicester.

After 118 days without a goal for Tottenham, along came three in the space of 13 minutes after throwing off his superhero's cape. Brilliant but ridiculous.

He celebrated his treble with silver fox Gian Piero Ventrone, Spurs boss Antonio Conte's sergeant major, who is nicknamed 'The Marine' because of his gruelling fitness drills, bordering on torture, leave players collapsed and throwing up.

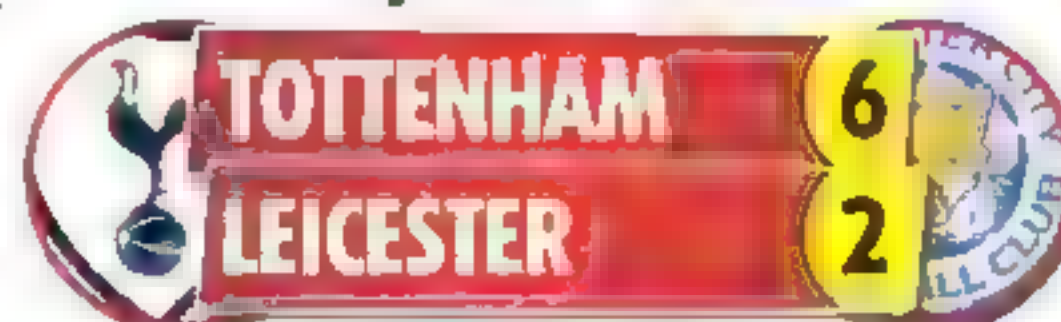

Son said: "He's a killer. But I have a really good relationship with Gian Piero."

"Obviously his English isn't perfect and sometimes he comes with his phone to translate into English from Italian."

"It means a lot. Not just football-wise, but life-wise he gives me so much advice and I am grateful for that. I always give him a big hug, even in tough times. He's always been next to me at every stop. Even today, before we left the hotel, we had a couple of minutes and a nice conversation which made me comfortable and grateful."

Son had cut an increasingly frustrated figure lately after struggling to open his account for the season.

According to Premier League stat fans, his previous 17 goal attempts this season had all drawn a blank. The last four now read goal, goal, blank, goal.

He added: "I'm born loving football and I am still in love with football. I'm an attacking player and when I'm not scoring, I'm not happy. How can I be happy if I have an unbelievable opportunity to score and don't take the chances?"

"If I'm happy and I'm not scoring, I probably wouldn't be here."

"Sometimes when I go home, even if we've won the game, I'm still sad because my performance wasn't good, there are things I can do better and the mistakes I made because I missed the chances."

"But I still love football, even in the tough moments, and this is why I am here."

Son admitted his drought was harder to take after scoring 23 goals and sharing the Golden Boot with Liverpool's Mo Salah last season.

He said: "Sometimes you achieve so many amazing things that people are going to look at you and give you more attention."

"It was a tough first few games, but I have experienced enough in professional football teams. I had some bad periods. It

JAMES IS HURTING LIKE MAD FOR BREN

by MIKE WALTERS

JAMES MADDISON admits he is "hurt" that manager Brendan Rodgers has taken the flak for Leicester's shocking start.

The one-cap England midfielder says the Foxes' six consecutive defeats are a "collective" responsibility.

Rodgers was given pelters by a section of Leicester's travelling support as he walked across the pitch to acknowledge their backing after Heung-min Son's hat-trick took the game away from City.

Playmaker Maddison said: "Pressure? It's a collective, it's not the manager, we're the 11 out there."

"It's painful and it hurts when you see a manager who you have a lot of respect for and you have a brilliant relationship with get so much heat and so much negativity."

"Ultimately we're the players out there, we have to do the business and we haven't of late. "People will see 6-2 and think, 'Wow, Leicester got battered again' - but I don't think it was the case."

"We put so much into the game and first half it seemed like the Leicester we know and a Brendan Rodgers side that we've created."

"Then Son comes on, produces a couple of moments of magic and it ends up 6-2, which looks like a ridiculous scoreline and it's hard to take."

Rodgers brought in a set-piece coach after Leicester's nightmare defending corners and free-kicks last season, but Spurs' first two goals were a return to dead-ball shambles.

Defender James Justin said: "The forward players are doing more than enough for us to win games and we need to come together as a group and keep clean sheets."

"This season, apart from the Arsenal game and this one, we've been pretty solid from set-pieces. We've just been undone by a couple today, but both of those goals are preventable."

"It's pretty low (team morale) but we've got to get our heads up and work over the break."

BURNLEY 2
BRISTOL CITY 1

by JOHN RICHARDSON

BURNLEY players are all singing from the same song sheet - and Vincent Kompany is delighted.

The new Turf Moor boss brought in 16 players during the summer and many feared it would take them a while to gel.

But the Clarets are in fourth place and Kompany said: "We've all got high standards. When you look back before the first game, there was a lot of uncertainty."

"Today there's music in this team and that's what we need to maintain."

"There is a lot of progression which still can be made but it's a team that is at least giving hope - and hope is important."

"As long as we keep creating chances, I believe we are doing the right thing."

Chances did arrive and were taken in style by Burnley stalwart Jay Rodriguez, who hit the winner, and new boy Manuel Benson, whose opener was levelled by Nahki Wells for Bristol City.

Rodriguez is delighted the new recruits have hit the ground running, saying: "The willingness to work and learn, and the hunger, is there. It's a really healthy dressing room."

For Bristol City it's all about improving on last season's 17th-place finish.

Manager Nigel Pearson said: "Had we won we would have 17 points. We probably deserve to be on 17 or 18 points. We're not, but it's still a big improvement on where we have been."

"We can make improvements which will give us a chance of being competitive."

wasn't that bad, but in these tough moments I had some lessons and really good people around me to help me.

"I was not happy and I was disappointed with myself. Now I can go away with the national team with a good feeling."

Rock bottom Leicester had a deserved foothold at 2-2, and the Foxes were good value for Youri Tielemans and James Maddison's goals.

However, City have leaked 22 goals in seven games - Leicester's worst defensive league record in any division.

And also the poorest defensive record of any team in the Premier League era at this stage of the season.

The Foxes' poor start to the season has seen manager Brendan Rodgers come under fire from angry fans.

Harry Kane, Eric Dier and Rodrigo Bentancur's other goals for Tottenham were too easy.

Something has to give at the King Power and Rodgers is the obvious fall guy.

But for high-flying Spurs, who head to table-toppers and arch-rivals Arsenal next, all the eggs in Conte's basket are most certainly Sonny side up again.

Norwood praise for top-class Blades

PRESTON
SHEFFIELD UTD0

OLI NORWOOD hailed the Paul Heckingbottom revolution, with Sheffield United sitting pretty at the top of the Championship.

A first-half strike from Senegalese midfielder Iliman Ndiaye and a close-range finish from Oli McBurnie with 15 minutes remaining saw the Blades go three points clear at the summit.

And after a fourth straight win and clean sheet – and having claimed a seventh win in their opening 10 league outings – Norwood said: "It's been incredible, the rise and the points we've picked up. Since Hecky has been in charge, it has been unbelievable."

"It's been a fantastic start – since the first game, we haven't looked back – but it's not just been this season, it's ever since Hecky took the job."

Former Barnsley and Leeds boss Heckingbottom started life at Bramall Lane as the club's Under-23s coach but had a short-spell as interim boss when Chris Wilder left in March 2021, and became the permanent manager after Slavisa Jokanovic departed last November.

And the Yorkshire-born 45-year-old coach has worked wonders as they set their sights on the Premier League.

The Blades were beaten 3-2 on penalties by Nottingham Forest in last year's play-off semi-finals but this season they are on an eight-match unbeaten run.

"Last season we ran out of time, it's pretty simple really," said Norwood. "Another 10 minutes in the Forest game and we could have won, we had the momentum."

"We were disappointed, it was heartbreaking what happened, but we've picked up where we left off last season."

"We've set our stall out this season and set the standard. We want to stay there [at the top of the table]."

Ndiaye got the ball rolling for the Blades after they found themselves under the cosh in the first half.

The Lilywhites wasted a string of chances before Ben Whiteman and Liam Lindsay dithered for the hosts and Ndiaye pinched the ball, beat two defenders and smashed home off the inside of the right post.

And then Scotland hitman McBurnie sealed the deal with a smart finish for his fourth league goal in five games.

REF JUSTICE: Molumby appeals while Pukki celebrates Byram's goal and (inset) O'Shea is mobbed after opening the scoring

SAM'S GIFT IS PERFECT

SAM BYRAM admitted his unexpected birthday present might never have arrived.

The Norwich full-back turned 29 on Friday and scored his first goal since December 2015 the following day.

Not that he knew much about it as Teemu Pukki's shot hit him on an arm to cancel out Dara O'Shea's early West Brom opener.

But at least he was on the pitch to score it. The former West Ham man, who was at Leeds the last time he scored, revealed he had been close to quitting not so long ago.

The makeshift left-back (right, tackling Jayson Molumby) had a huge chunk of his career put on hold when a hamstring tendon ruptured so badly it came away from the bone.

That ended his season in February 2020 - and, two operations later, he did not play again until December the following year.

"There was times when I'd considered maybe packing it in, when I couldn't see a solution to the problem," he said.

"I'd gone down different routes to fix the issue and it just took time. I'm thankful to be where I am."

Byram also insisted he had no idea whether his 68th-minute goal should have stood. "I'll have to watch it back and see if I was offside and if it did hit my arm," he said. "But I'm not complaining. I'll take it and I'll take the point as well. It's nice to get back on the scoresheet."

The Baggies were convinced it should have been ruled out.

And they believe they should have had a penalty at 1-0 when Grant Hanley barged John Swift over.

Steve Bruce knows his position remains precarious so long as Albion are at the wrong end of the table.

They would have dropped into the bottom three had Middlesbrough beaten Rotherham on Saturday night. The Baggies were superior to the second-place hosts, who had won their previous six, from the moment O'Shea lost his marker - Byram - in the eighth minute to head home Swift's free-kick at the back post.

Bruce, who let the officials have both barrels afterwards, was confident a side that has drawn seven but won just once can quickly move up the table, especially as he now has Erik Pieters on the left of the defence

The Dutchman joined last week as a free agent after leaving Burnley in the summer and had a solid game.

"I know I'm good enough, I've got the experience and the body's still good at the minute," said Pieters.

"I feel great, I'm not slowing down."

KATIE STENDEL stunned defending champions Chelsea at Prenton Park yesterday.

The Blues were expected to start their campaign with a victory against newly-promoted rivals and opened the scoring early on through Fran Kirby.

Yet a pair of second-half penalties from Stengel completed a sensational comeback.

Much was expected of Liverpool following their promotion to the WSL. Matt Beard's side stormed to the Championship title last season by winning 16 of their 22 games, losing just twice.

Even Emma Hayes waxed lyrical about the Reds before the game. "They've got an experienced manager who knows the league," said the Chelsea manager.

"You can see with the players he's brought in he knows what it takes at this level. I think Liverpool will not struggle, they will be very competitive this year."

Yet Liverpool received a rude awakening in the top flight when Gilly Flaherty caught Guro Reiten in the box, allowing Kirby to step up and calmly convert the penalty.

After that, the 3,006 spectators at Prenton Park – a record attendance for Liverpool at the ground – would have been forgiven for fearing the worst. Yet the hosts continued to battle and got their reward just after the hour mark when Millie Bright was penalised for handling in the box. American forward Stengel made no mistake from the spot.

The Blues were expected to respond to that setback but they could not handle Stengel.

The match-winner made a brilliant run into the box. Kadeisha Buchanan, on her Chelsea debut, had no choice but to commit a foul and Stengel converted her second spot-kick.

SAINTS STUN HOOPS

CELTIC suffered a first league defeat in 364 days as they were beaten 2-0 at St Mirren yesterday.

Ange Postecoglou's side came into the game after starting their Scottish Premiership title defence with six wins in the opening six games.

But they fell behind to Mark O'Hara's header shortly before the break with Jonah Ayunga heading the second eight minutes into the second half.

Defeat means Postecoglou's side missed out on the chance to restore their five-point lead at the top of the table following Rangers' 2-1 defeat of Dundee United 24 hours earlier.

The Hoops boss said: "First thing, credit to St Mirren. They worked really hard and were committed to their game plan and made it difficult for us. There are always reminders we still have work to do."

"We didn't perform in any of the areas we like to perform in and have been performing in during the first six games of the season.

"There isn't anything hugely positive we can take from today, including team selection – it probably wasn't right."

Celtic supporters disrupted the minute's applause held in memory of The Queen.

Some visiting fans chanted, "If you hate the royal family clap your hands" and a banner with those words was held up in the away end.

Alan Forrest scored twice as Hearts moved third following a 3-0 win at Motherwell.

Hearts boss Robbie Neilson said: "We rode our luck at times, got the three goals, so all in all I'm delighted. The most important thing is we go into the international break third in the league."

BLACK AND WHITE CATS

Alese: We focused like Juventus

by IAN BAKER

WATFORD 2
SUNDERLAND 2

AJI ALESE reckons learning from a club that wear black and white stripes has given Sunderland a lift.

But don't worry Black Cats fans, the ex-West Ham defender is referring to Italian giants Juventus and not hated rivals Newcastle.

Tony Mowbray (inset) and his men returned from a five-day, four-night working trip down south with four points from two games.

The Wearsiders opted to stay put in a hotel in between Wednesday's 3-0 win at Reading and this visit to Vicarage Road.

And they followed up Reading with this point in which Alese and Jewison Bennette scored first goals for the club.

Alese said: "It's helped us as a squad. I think some Italian teams like Juventus talk about when they go on a bad run, they go away for a couple of nights. They can just focus purely on football, away from distractions, and that helps.

"We're here to play football but it has given us a bit of time. You can create relationships with players you don't know.

"The manager has been here a couple of weeks and everyone is trying to get to know him better. Over the last few days we have seen a different side to him."

Alese's goal came in first-half stoppage time after Keinan Davis' 35th-minute effort had put Watford ahead.

But he admits it would not have been given a few years ago. Alese's shot appeared to be cleared by Hamza Choudhury but was given by goal-line technology.

He said: "When I was growing up watching football, it probably would not have been given. Technology helps."

The Hornets appeared to be heading towards a much-needed win after Luke O'Nien headed into his own net on 62 minutes.

But Costa Rican star Bennette fired in the leveller three minutes from time to move Sunderland to fifth. Now he needs to work on communication.

Alese said: "His English is very limited. Some of us know a few Spanish words, so we try to speak to him in that. He's a nice lad and that makes it easy to get along."

Watford have a history of sacking managers, but despite just one win in eight games, Rob Edwards' job seems safe for now.

Defender William Troost-Ekong said: "We're all backing the manager and want to fight for him. The good thing is we're all pulling in the right direction. Sooner or later that will click."

GRATEFUL: Bielik

Bielik is back on big high

BIRMINGHAM 0
COVENTRY 0

by JOHN WRAGG

POLAND international Krystian Bielik wants to play at the World Cup as a thank you to Birmingham for helping to save his career.

Bielik was flying at Derby under Wayne Rooney when he tore his anterior cruciate ligament for the second time in a year.

When Derby dropped into League One Bielik was told if he did not find a Championship club, he would miss out on Qatar.

He landed a season's loan with Birmingham and celebrated the first full game of his second comeback in this Midlands derby.

"I'm back after those bad injuries - this was a massive 90 minutes for me," said Bielik, who has five Poland caps.

"I was worried about my career. If you had two ACLs in one knee, you have a right to be worried.

"I think only about the future now. I have a massive tournament with the World Cup to aim for.

"I know that if I am fit, I will play for my country.

"The manager at Birmingham, John Eustace, the whole medical staff, the whole club, gave me the opportunity to sign and make myself fine.

"The gaffer has told me I will get time on the pitch because he knows the World Cup is a massive thing for me."

Coventry manager Mark Robins also has a big challenge - turning round the club's worst start in six years that sees them bottom of the table.

Keeper Ben Wilson, who protected the Sky Blues' point with a late save from Auston Trusty after Gustavo Hamer was sent off for kicking out at Birmingham's Hannibal Mejbri, believes Robins can do it.

Wilson said: "We can take heart from one of our best performances of the season so far and our first clean sheet."

CRAZY ABOUT HIS CORGIS

THE Queen adored corgis – as this September 1950 picture of the then-Princess Elizabeth shows. During her reign she owned more than 30. Many were direct descendants of Susan, who was an 18th birthday present from her parents in 1944. Such was her love for the dogs, they even accompanied her on honeymoon. Far left, she hugs her first royal corgi, Dookie, in 1926. He was bought by her father George VI when he was Duke of York.

Queen Elizabeth II:

HER MAJ'S PUPPY LOVE

THE Queen had been on the throne just seven months when she was pictured with Susan the corgi at Balmoral Castle in 1952. The much-loved pooch spent an amazing 15 years loyally by the Queen's side. When her cherished pet died, the monarch said: "I always dreaded losing her, but I am ever so thankful that her suffering was so mercifully short." Susan was buried in the pet cemetery at Sandringham.

CONSTANT COMPANIONS

QUEEN Elizabeth gives a radiant smile as she fusses over two of her corgis in the garden of Windsor Castle in 1962. Her Majesty took her beloved pets with her everywhere. Below, she lets them run amok on the lawn in front of Balmoral in September 1971. Far left, she arrives with corgis in tow at Aberdeen Airport on her way to her Scottish retreat in 1974. And the cute pups make their own way off a plane at Heathrow in September 1998.

Queen Elizabeth II:

RIDING HIGH IN THE SADDLE

ONE of Queen Elizabeth's great passions was horses – riding, breeding and racing them. It all began when she was given a Shetland pony at just four years old. Over the years, she owned hundreds of horses, including many winning racehorses. Here, she is on horseback looking across the beautiful Scottish countryside towards Balmoral Castle during the Royal Family's annual summer holiday in September 1971.

THOROUGH BRED

THE Queen enjoyed being around horses her entire life. She started lessons at four years old and, incredibly, was spotted riding in Windsor at the age of 96. Here, the Princess takes her pony for a canter in Windsor Great Park in the 1930s. Left, Her Majesty returns a salute on her horse Burmese at the annual Trooping The Colour in 1979. The mare was ridden by the Queen at the ceremony for 18 consecutive years, from 1969 to 1986.

A REIN OF PLEASURE

HER Majesty's love for horses is on full view as she grins happily while getting up close to a mount at the Royal Windsor Horse Show in May 1997. She liked nothing better than to come face-to-face with the majestic beasts as she reviewed the troops. The Queen was Patron of the show for her entire reign, and as it is the highlight of the mounted regiments' calendar, it always gave her plenty of chance to indulge in her favourite hobby.

A BEARY NICE AFTERNOON

THE Queen enjoys tea with another national treasure – Paddington Bear. Her Majesty was known for her sense of humour and, during the BBC's Platinum Party at the Palace, fans saw her sit down with the popular children's character at Buck House. The monarch even pulled a marmalade sandwich – Paddington's favourite – out of her handbag. The Queen also starred in a 007 sketch with Daniel Craig (and a corgi, of course) for the opening ceremony of the 2012 Olympics in London, left.

THE Queen's love for animals went beyond corgis and horses.

She and Prince Philip were great supporters of the UK farming industry and often walked among the Highland cattle at Balmoral, as in this 1972 photo. The Royal Highland Show in Edinburgh left her beaming as she inspected cattle there in 2009, right. And students at Myerscough College in Bilsborrow, Lancs, were pleased to receive a visit in 2015.

SWANNING ABOUT

AN adorable cygnet provides the Queen with great joy as she visits a traditional swan ceremony. The monarch was guest of honour at Oakley Court on the River Thames in 2009, for the annual Swan Upping census.

During the ceremony, the Swan Marker and a team of Uppers travel on a five-day journey along the river, passing through Windsor. The swans' health is checked and they are counted to monitor numbers.
